Baessler Nervous In Court As Murder Case Continues

Short Adjournment Taken in County Court When Anton Baessler is Too Nervous to Take Stand in Defense Against Charge of Murdering Uriah Quick—Recovers and Questioning is Continued.

At 10 o'clock this morning when County Judge Traver convened the county court he announced that an unfortunate circumstance made it necessary to adjourn the court for a half hour. The circumstance, he said, was beyond the control of the court. A recess was taken until 10:35, when the Quick murder trial was resumed.

The reason for the recess was that Anton Baessler, defendant, who was on the stand all Tuesday afternoon, was in such a highly nervous state this morning that he was unable to go on the stand. He appeared in court but was apparently nervous and would not take the stand. Throughout the night it was said he had been in a bad condition.

When court finally did convene he appeared to have recovered his nerves and went on the stand and LeRoy Lounsberry, counsel for Baessler, concluded his direct examination and when court recessed Mr. Baessler was under cross examination by Roger H. Loughran, attorney for Michael Conner who is accused with Baessler of the murder of Uriah Quick.

He told on direct examination of his arrest and being brought to the jail here on January 27. He said he was asked many questions by Trooper Lawson and Sergeant Hopkins but he answered few. Later he said he was taken to the district attorney's office and Mr. Murray told him that Mary Fish had told the whole story and that he might as well come clean. He said they all "picked on" him there and first one and then another would question him. "They would not leave me alone while I was there. My nerves were pretty well shot." He said after a time they got him something for his nerves and after breakfast he went to Kerhonkson and looked for the blackjack but could not find it. On the way up to Leibhardt he said he saw the team which had pulled him out of the mud on the night of the murder. He told the officials and they talked to the driver of the team. On the way he showed them where he had put the pots and pans behind a stone wall. They continued on past Quick's to the spot where the things were hidden. At Quick's they went in the house and looked over the place for a time. While there Sergeant Hopkins dropped the cellar doors down several times and he said they all had a good laugh when he jumped each time. "My nerves were pretty well gone", he said.

They went back to the place where the pots and pans had been hidden and photographs were taken and the things brought back. At Quick's he said Mr. Murray told him about the letter from Mary Fish which she sent to Quick.

On the return to the court house he said he was in and out numerous times and was constantly being questioned. His nerves he said were in such a state that he would jump up thinking they wanted him again. At Kerhonkson that morning he asked for a drink of liquor but the Trooper said they would have to ask the district attorney. Mr. Murray, he said, would not permit him taking a drink.

He denied several statements which were continued in the written confession in evidence. He denied he had been told by Sergeant Hopkins that "you are in the bag. Mary Fish had told all." He said he had not told the Troopers that "all she can say is that I helped carry Quick's body out." He told of his nervous condition at an interview in the district attorney's office when he was given a cup of coffee early one morning. He said his hand shook so the cup would not stay in the saucer and fell to the floor and broke. He also said his hand shook so when he signed the statement that he could hardly write. That paper, the short statement, he said was read to him before he signed it.

Asked if he were questioned on the night of January 27, he said "It seemed I was always being questioned."

When questioned by Detective Wagner he said he did not know Wagner was a detective. The questioning began about 8 o'clock on January 28, and lasted until 2:30 in the morning of January 29. He said he had little sleep. Wagner and Simmons were alone with him much of the time and they laughed and joked with him when he was unable to pick up his coffee cup and get it to his mouth. At all times during the interview his relations and Mr. Wagner's were friendly until the time came when he refused to answer a question. He said Wagner stood up over him "like he would strike me and said, 'if you don't tell me I'll give you a threshing,' or something like that."

He said Mr. Lounsberry came on Monday after he had signed the statement. No one read the second statement to him. It was the long one containing 13 pages.

At that point Mr. Lounsberry asked the defendant to read the statement. Mr. Baessler started to read and Mr. Murray objected as the statement was in evidence. Mr. Lounsberry replied that when the statement had been read by the

Encouragement Found By Chairman Herzog in Employment Situation

Emergency Work Relief Bureau Finds Number of Men Do Not Respond to Call for Jobs Indicating They Have Found Employment.

Chairman Matthew Herzog of the Emergency Work Relief Bureau finds much of encouragement in the employment situation from the fact many who are called to work on the relief projects are failing to respond to the call.

The bureau has been calling 100 men every three days for work on the Boulevard and whereas up to lately but five to seven per cent have not answered the call, the percentage lately has risen to 20 per cent or better.

Of 103 men called last Thursday, 32 failed to show up, indicating that they had already found employment. About 100 men were called Monday and of this number 20 failed to respond.

In addition to the men given work on the Boulevard project, the bureau is furnishing 100 men each week for state highway work. This work is under a special state appropriation of $8,000 for the month of May and the men work under the direction of Engineer Bogert of the state department.

The bureau is also giving work to 50 or 60 men on miscellaneous jobs.

Mr. Herzog states that they recently have been grading the men on their employed list according to their needs and budgets. There are four grades. The first grade, in which there are 500 or 600 men, is composed of men who are married and have three or more dependents. The grades run down to unmarried men who have those partially dependent upon them. There are four or five hundred in the last three grades.

Friday the bureau will furnish transportation for 90 unmarried men, ages 18 to 25, who have some family responsibilities, to Poughkeepsie, where they will be assigned to work on Federal reforestation projects. Of the amount they will receive $25 a month will go to help their family budgets. These families have been removed from the list of those receiving relief.

Settle $10,000 Suit Brought For Death of Girl Struck By Auto

Following a conference between attorneys this morning, Justice Ellis J. Staley announced at the opening of Supreme Court that the pending action, trial of which was begun Tuesday afternoon, had been settled and discharged the jury.

This was an action for $10,000 brought by Mary R. Ellsworth, as administratrix, for the death of her eight year old daughter, Lorraine Catherine Ellsworth, who died as the result of injuries sustained on the evening of July 23, 1931. Lorraine was playing with other children on Hurley avenue, near the corner of Snyder avenue, when she was struck by a car driven by Myron Hopper. She was taken to Kingston Hospital and died that same evening.

Among witnesses for the plaintiff at the opening of the trial Tuesday was Judson S. Babcock, who lives directly across the street from the scene of the accident and who was sitting on his porch at the time. He testified that he did not see the actual occurrence, but saw the little girl's body as it was carried along the roadway for some distance. Lorraine's brother, John O. Ellsworth, and Mildred Crantz, who were among the children who had been playing there, were called to the stand. Neither saw the little girl struck by the car as their backs were turned at the time. Mrs. Catharine Crantz, in front of whose house the accident happened, and Norwood Brown, who lives nearby, were also called.

Charles de la Verane, with Chris. J. Plamann of counsel, appeared for the plaintiff. Frank W. Brooks was the attorney for the defense.

None of the other cases on the calendar were ready for trial this forenoon and Judge Staley adjourned court to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Jewish Y. P. L. to Meet.

The Young People's League will meet at the Jewish Community Center on Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock at which time plans for a hayride in the near future will be discussed. A social hour and refreshments will follow the meeting.

Repeal Sought As Aid In Financing Measure To Create Employment

Ready to Introduce to Congress $3,-500,000,000 Measure Designed to Stimulate Employment by Trade Agreements and Public Works.

Washington, May 17 (AP).—A carefully polished $3,300,000,000 public works-industrial control bill—described in a high quarter as counting upon repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment for eventual financing aid—today was poised for formal introduction in Congress.

How closely President Roosevelt will link the measure to go forward today with prohibition repeal could not be immediately ascertained. A responsible official stated that in the President's message of transmission he would ask power to reduce or eliminate as he sees fit the new taxes to be proposed for underwriting the mighty public works program.

In the same quarter it was reported that, seeking new sources of government revenue, Mr. Roosevelt contemplated an early appeal to the states to ratify the amendment repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

The huge new measure, designed to stimulate employment through the building of public works and permission for industry to enter trade agreements, was given a ninth and final re-drafting late last night.

Forestry Men to Meet at Armory

Kingston's quota of 90 men for the civilian conservation corps, organized to carry out the federal reforesting project, will meet at the old armory on Broadway this evening for final instructions from Secretary Fred A. Meeker of the local emergency work relief bureau and Fred M. Evans, head of the investigating staff of the local bureau.

This evening the men who are to go will receive final instructions as to when and where to meet Thursday when they will be conveyed by bus to Poughkeepsie for a physical examination at the armory there. Those applicants who are accepted will then be transported directly to Fort Jay at Governor's Island for a period of conditioning before being sent out on the reforesting project.

County Quota Unfilled.

It was stated today that Ulster county's quota of 35 men had been filled in the lower part of the county, but word had not been received from those in charge of filling the quota of the upper end of the county. No word has been received as yet as to the hour at which the county quota is to report at Poughkeepsie for physical examination.

Many Volunteers For Poppy Sale

Happy at the way women have been answering the call for volunteers to sell poppies, Mrs. Grace M. DuBois, chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary poppy committee, has announced that there will be more than 25 workers distributing the memorial flowers to the people of this city on Poppy Day, Saturday, May 27.

Mrs. DuBois reports that not alone are women of the Legion Auxiliary volunteering for this patriotic work, but many volunteers are coming from the girls' and young women's groups of the city. They appear to realize, she says, that by taking part in the poppy sale they can accomplish much for the welfare of the needy veterans' families and help rekindle for peace-time service the spirit of patriotism which made the great war achievements of this country possible.

The Auxiliary is very grateful to all those who have volunteered to help and hopes that the public will respond in the same spirit to their appeals on Poppy Day.

FARM WORK IN NEW YORK STATE BEHIND SCHEDULE.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 17 (AP).—Farm work in New York state is from one to two weeks behind schedule, says the summary of weather and crop conditions of the United States Department of Agriculture Weather Bureau here, issued today.

"The condition of winter grains varies from poor to fair. As there was considerable winter killing," continues the summary. "Pastures started in poor condition but have shown much improvement, and stock is now on pasture in most sections. Oat seeding is about one-half completed, with early sown up to a good stand. Up state potato planting has started locally; on Long Island potatoes are coming up.

"Fruits have bloomed well, but frosts in late April and early May caused considerable damage in scattered localities. Early truck crops are doing fairly well, but garden making in general has been slow, as the soil is still cold. Warmer weather is needed for most crops."

Treasury Receipts.

Washington, May 17 (AP).—Treasury receipts for May 15 were $5,897,-966.68; expenditures $28,425,364.29; balance $420,616,340.66. Customs duties for 15 days of May were $10,-757,374.03.

Ulster Beer Board Keeps Amount of Its Budget Secret

Robert H. Park, One of Board, States Reason is That Local Board Does Not Want to "Embarrass State Board"—Orange County Board Had No Such Hesitancy.

Robert H. Park of New Paltz and Merton L. Goldrick of Goldrick's Landing, comprising the Ulster county beer control board met Tuesday afternoon at the Elks Club on Fair street, and adopted a tentative budget to cover the operating costs of the board during the 13 months until June 30, 1934. What the amount of the budget is was not made public. Mr. Park said today that the reason for keeping the amount of the proposed budget secret was so as not to "embarrass" the state board. The Orange county beer control board, however, had no such hesitancy for at its meeting the other day it announced it had adopted a budget calling for $7,985 which budget had been forwarded to Albany for approval of the state beer control organization. According to Mr. Park the budget adopted by the Ulster board has been forwarded to Albany for approval and will be made public when it is approved by the state board.

Mr. Goldrick, the other member of the Ulster board, could not be reached today as he was called out of town on business.

The board will elect its secretary after the budget is approved by the state organization.

Milk Control Board Busy With Fan Mail

Albany, N. Y., May 17 (AP)—The Milk Control Board has been kept busy with fan mail during the past few days since it issued its latest orders raising prices to consumers in New York city and fixing a minimum price of four cents a quart to farmers for their milk.

"You have released the shackles in which the producer has been bound and which have deprived his family of an education and the necessities of life," wrote E. G. S. Gagnier, dairyman of Churubusco in northern New York. "We feel that you have done nothing less than what Lincoln did in freeing the slaves. We are with you 100 per cent * * *."

The distributors are also among those commending the board.

"The stabilization of selling prices brought about through the efforts of the Milk Control Board will prove very beneficial to the producers," said the Crowley Milk Company of Binghamton. "The proper selling prices which the board establishes from time to time will enable distributors to pay the producer a fair return and alleviate any complaint from that source."

Former President Of Princeton Is Dead

Princeton, N. J., May 17 (AP).—A stroke may have caused the automobile crash which killed Dr. John Grier Hibben, president emeritus of Princeton University, and critically injured his wife.

Dr. Hibben, who was 72, died yesterday afternoon when a motor car he was driving swerved into a beer truck near Woodbridge. Eye witnesses believed the educator may have suffered a stroke and lost control.

As messages of sorrow came today from many parts of the world, Mrs. Hibben lay unconscious in Rahway General Hospital with a fractured skull. Funeral arrangements for her husband and Princeton's plans to honor him were expected to be made today.

Governor Moore said, on being informed of the accident:

"That is terrible news. In Dr. Hibben's passing the state and nation have lost a man of stature."

Dr. Hibben died en route to the hospital. Coroner Finn gave the cause of death as an internal hemorrhage brought about by a crushed right side.

WISCONSIN MILK STRIKE CRISIS IS IMMINENT

Milwaukee, May 17 (AP).—A crisis in the Wisconsin milk strike appeared imminent today as the state sent more than 1,000 National Guards acting as deputy sheriffs, into the field to combat pickets who said thousands of "farmers would arise" to close cheese factories, condenseries and creameries.

Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell, who said he was desirous of a showdown today, concentrated his forces in two sectors—Shawano county in the north, and counties comprising the Milwaukee milk shed. Likewise, pickets were massing in those areas.

GANDHI'S CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY, DOCTORS SAY.

Poona, India, May 17 (AP).—Doctors have found the Mahatma Gandhi, nearing the turn of a three weeks' fast against "untouchability," surprisingly well despite a weaker condition and a feebleness of voice.

"Very satisfactory," was the report of six physicians who examined him last night.

The Indian leader began his fast May 8.

Hitler Declares For Peace; Willing To Disarm If Other Nations Will Do Likewise; Endorses Roosevelt Plan

German Chancellor, in Speech Delivered Today Before German Reichstag, Admits Lasting Economic Reconstruction Is Unthinkable Until Disarmament Problems are Settled—Says Germany Will Scrap Whole Military Equipment If Other Nations Do Same—Explains Germany Is Unarmed While Other Nations Bristle With Armaments.

Berlin, May 17 (AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in an impassioned speech before the Reichstag, today gratefully endorsed President Roosevelt's plan for relieving the international crisis and promised cooperation with Mr. Roosevelt's efforts.

The chancellor agreed that without solution of the disarmament problem lasting economic reconstruction is unthinkable.

In behalf of the entire nation, and especially the young Nazi movement, he pledged that Germany would go as far as any nation in disarming, even to the extent of scrapping her whole military equipment provided other powers did the same.

He particularly offered to refrain from any claims of instruments of aggression so long as other nations scrapped theirs.

"There is but one great task before the world, namely, to secure the peace of the world," the chancellor exclaimed amid the plaudits of his listeners.

He denied that Germany contemplated an invasion of France or Poland, emphasizing that his nation is devoid of all instruments of aggression.

Germany, the chancellor said, is ready to join any non-aggression pact in the "realization that the high-minded proposal of the American President to inject the mighty United States as the guarantor of peace in Europe would mean great tranquilization for all who would desire peace."

Detailing with figures the extent to which Germany is disarmed under the Treaty of Versailles, and presenting statistics to show that other nations are bristling with armaments, the chancellor demanded fiercely:

"What more concrete security can France want from Germany? Has not Germany any right to security for herself?"

Will Follow Present Treaties

His government, he pledged, would proceed on no other path except that prescribed in the international treaties, but he asserted that Germany would under no circumstances sign any paper which continued her disqualification.

Should such effort nevertheless be made, he warned that Germany would withdraw from international conferences and from the League of Nations.

No War Could Mend Matters

No new European war could mend matters, the chancellor declared, but, on the contrary even if a resort to force succeeded, the result would only be a greater disturbance of balance, and the germ would be laid for more trouble, misery and distress.

Such madness would end, he predicted, in the complete collapse of the social order as it is known today. He declared that a Europe sunk in communistic chaos would mean a crisis of tremendous extent and duration.

Loud laughter greeted the chancellor's scathing references to ideas prevailing abroad about German sports clubs being the equivalent of military formations.

When the chancellor finished his speech, which lasted an hour, the whole house arose spontaneously and sang "Deutschland Ueber Alles."

Thereupon all of the parties, including the Socialists, voted for a resolution agreeing with the Hitler statement and reemphasizing the nation's claims to arms equality.

Reichstag in Tense Expectation.

The Reichstag, convening in the Kroll Opera House because its own building was damaged by fire a few months ago, had awaited in most tense expectation for the chancellor's presentation of Germany's case before the world.

This expectation was shared by thousands lining the adjacent square.

Former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, who headed the nation when Hitler was struggling for power, was conspicuous in the capacity house. The diplomatic boxes were filled.

The absence of the cheering storm troop phalanxes, usually present for important Nazi and government ceremonies, was especially noteworthy.

The chancellor, beginning in an even voice, afterwards warmed to his subject, especially when he claimed for the new young Germany rights and privileges the same as any other nation.

There were roars of applause when he scathingly detailed his account of the injuries inflicted on Germany by

President Listens to Hitler's Speech, Gets Reaction to His Plan

State Department Calls Hitler's Address "Encouragingly Conciliatory"—Congratulations Pour in to Roosevelt On His Arms Message.

Washington, May 17 (AP)—Encouraged by the world reception to his arms message of yesterday, President Roosevelt made it a point today to listen to the speech by Adolf Hitler on German aspirations.

Although he had no immediate comment, it was quickly said at the state department that the chancellor's address to the Reichstag was encouragingly conciliatory.

With the President in the White House proper to hear the speech were Postmaster General Farley, Assistant Secretary Moley of the State Department and members of the president's personal staff.

Arrangements were made for the president and his diplomatic advisors to get a text of the speech as quickly as possible for close study. Perhaps a statement will be made later.

Meanwhile, a growing heap of messages, among them telegrams from Nicholas Murray Butler and John W. Davis, testified that the president's appeal to the world for peace had stirred an immediate and warm response over the country.

Butler, Republican and president of Columbia University, said "This is the moral and intellectual leadership for which American intelligence and American character have so long been waiting."

"I congratulate you upon the form, temper and timeliness of your message to the powers," Davis, former Democratic Presidential nominee, said. "It stirred the proper note."

From Geneva, where he is head of the American delegation to the wheat conference, Henry Morgenthau, Sr., messaged: "Delighted with your doctrine. Everybody here most enthusiastic."

"Your arms statement today will always be regarded as one of our greatest state papers," Clarence E. Martin, president of the American Bar Association, wired from Martinsburg, W. Va.

Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago, former member of the Wickersham commission, called the message "epoch making."

There were many messages of congratulations from peace societies over the country and many from the rank and file of the citizenry.

JURY SEES TWO SIDES TO MITCHELL'S MAKEUP

New York, May 17 (AP).—Two portraits of Charles E. Mitchell—contrasting as night contrasts with day—confronted a jury of business and professional men today as they settled back to hear evidence of what the government calls an $850,-000 tax fraud.

Not a muscle in the stern face of the former potentate of world finance stirred as he heard himself described by defense and prosecution as:

1. A patriot who stripped himself "threadbare" of a $25,000,000 fortune to protect his bank and the country in dark days of panic.

2. A man who "robbed the public treasury" by stock sales which were "shams, fakes, pretenses" designed to dodge income taxes.

MEANS FOUND GUILTY OF LINDBERGH RANSOM HOAX

Washington, May 17 (AP)—Gaston B. Means, already under sentence of 15 years, today faced an additional two-year imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

With Norman T. Whitaker, "The Fox", Means was convicted yesterday by a District of Columbia Supreme Court jury of conspiring to defraud Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $350,-000 in a ransom hoax involving the kidnaped baby of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

It was expected today that their attorneys would file motions for a new trial and sentence may be postponed until the last of next week.

AGED MAN TO RECEIVE MENTAL EXAMINATION.

Charles Elting, 73, of 75 Henry street, under arrest on a charge of stealing rolls from the doorway of a residence uptown, will be examined as to his mental condition by Dr. L. E. Sanford. The aged man was arrested recently on the same charge and at that time informed Judge Culloton that he had been helping himself to rolls and bread for several months. He was discharged at that time with a warning to abandon the practice. When arrested the other day on the same charge Judge Culloton decided to have the aged man examined as to his mental condition.

Highlights of Hitler Address to Reichstag

(By The Associated Press.)

It is not wise to rob people of their economic means of existence without taking into account their right to live, Chancellor Hitler told the Reichstag.

"The idea of rendering service to other peoples by destroying economically a people of 65,000,000 is so absurd that nobody can dare today openly to expose it."

Germany has fulfilled her reparations obligations, the chancellor said, "with a fidelity that was truly suicidal."

"It is the most solemn wish of the national government," Hitler asserted, to prevent "Europe going under in communistic chaos."

The chancellor said that the purpose of the Nazi revolution was threefold: First, to prevent a Communist overthrow; second, to give employment to millions of workless; third, to re-establish stable government.

"The Versailles Treaty is no solution, for existing European troubles," the chancellor declared, "nevertheless no German government will of its own accord bring about a break of the arrangement, which cannot be removed without being supplanted by a better one."

The chancellor announced Germany demands the disarmament of other nations because equality in armaments is moral, legal and sensible.

"Germany wants nothing she is not ready to give to others."

"It is untrue that the Storm Troopers of the Nazi party stand in any relation to the Reichswehr and that they constitute militarily trained units or army reserves."

The purpose of both the Nazi Storm Troops and the Steel Helmets, the Nazi chief declared, was to protect Germany from Communism.

"The danger of Communism, other nations cannot measure."

"Germany is ready to regard a five-year transitional period as adequate for reestablishing her national security in the expectation that at the end of this time Germany will really be on equal footing with others."

Baessler Relates His Version of What Took Place at Quick's Home

Accused Man Tells His Story and Blames Farmer's Murder on Conner.

Anton Baessler, defendant with Michael Conner in Quick murder case, Tells His Story and Blames Farmer's Murder on Conner.

Anton Baessler between sobs and smiles told his version of how Uriah Quick met his death at his home in Leonards on January 22 last, and as to his part in the crime. When first arrested and questioned he was told that Mamie Fish had "told everything" and at that time he said, "all she can say is that I helped carry Quick out" and that was the story he told on the witness stand Tuesday. Baessler places the blame entirely on Michael Conner, co-defendant in the matter. He testified that he and Mamie Fish returned to the Quick home after an absence of about 10 or 15 minutes in search of an automobile jack and as they approached he heard "quite a rumpus, a noise, things were dropping and there was quite a shake-up there" as he described it. He alleges he entered and saw Quick on the floor of the dining room with Conner over him beating him with a black-jack. He claims he went in and pulled Mike away and took the black jack away and then all cleaned up the house and left after Quick's body had been taken out and put down the cellar steps. Quick was dead when the body was taken out, he said.

Baessler, who has maintained a rather calm outward appearance throughout the trial and at times smiled at statements made by witnesses, took the stand at the morning session and was still on the stand under direct examination by his counsel, LeRoy Lounsberry, when court recessed at 5 o'clock. He had been taken through the actual killing and was about to be questioned in regard to confessions which he is alleged to have made when Judge Traver halted the case for the day.

Throughout his examination Baessler maintained a calm demeanor. His speech was slow and at times thick causing the Court, counsel and Court Stenographer Harold Styles to ask the witness to repeat answers at times. The calm manner of Baessler was broken two or three times during the examination, once when mention of his marriage and his wife was made, a second time when he spoke of her serious illness at the hospital where she was suffering from blood poisoning as a result of a burn and again when LeRoy Lounsberry had led the witness up to the scene of the killing.

The story had been told of the entry into the house and of Quick's position on the floor and just where Conner was and what he was doing.

"Now Mr. Baessler come over here and lie down on the floor in the exact position you saw Quick when you entered and tell us where Mike was?" asked Mr. Lounsberry.

Shows Body's Position.

Baessler became immediately nervous and his face flushed. He left the witness chair and placed his body on the floor in front of the jury before the counsels' table. He extended his right hand upward. It trembled and he broke into tears.

The position he demonstrated was on his left side with his head and shoulders up from the floor and his right hand extended over his head, his legs drawn upward. He said Mike had stood back of Quick with a blackjack in his hand striking Quick.

Mr. Lounsberry thanked Baessler for the demonstration and Baessler again took the stand, evidently much unstrung. However he wiped his eyes and quickly recovered himself and continued his story.

He identified the black jack which had previously been put in evidence by The People. It was his jack which he kept in the restaurant. Mike knew where it was kept either on a shelf in the cellar near the door or behind a couple of boxes at the entrance to another room off the restaurant. He said that was the black jack Mike had used.

At the opening of the afternoon session Baessler said he had employed various counsel at times. Once he had engaged Mr. Cox of Ellenville. He also retained Mr. Lounsberry and District Attorney Cleon B. Murray at times.

He told of the friendship between himself and Mike. He said they used to go on numerous trips and their relations had always been friendly. On one of these trips he met with an accident in the town of Rochester and was arrested for reckless driving and paid a $25 fine. The appeal from that conviction is still pending.

Asked as to why he usually took Conner to Stamford when Conner went away he said he had done this because if he gave Conner $10 or $20 and told him to go up there Mike usually would go on a drunk and return in a couple of days broke so he usually delivered Mike to his destination.

Throughout his examination Baessler said frequently that both he and Conner had been drinking to excess. At times he said between January 7 and January 26, the day of the arrests, he and Connor would lock up the restaurant and go out and get intoxicated, they drank "quite a lot together". He said there were always drinks for all.

Between January 7 and January 26 he said he would drink a pint of liquor before breakfast and on an average he consumed from two to three quarts of liquor every day and Mike would drink perhaps two quarts every day.

On January 22, the day of the murder, he said he had consumed a pint of liquor before breakfast.

"You were drinking quite a lot" asked Mr. Lounsberry.

"Yes, I wish I had one now," replied Baessler.

After leading up to January 22 Baessler was asked to tell his story of just what happened that day. He said he and Mike had breakfast that morning and left about 9 o'clock to go to Quick's. Mike went along and they took two bottles of liquor. That time they went by way of Meetenkonte. Arriving at the place they parked near the garage and went in. Quick was there and Mamie was upstairs. She entered and Baessler asked her to go to the hospital with him. When they went in they took along the liquor.

When asked to go to Kingston Quick said Mamie had been to the hospital the Sunday before and she ought not to go this Sunday. There was some talk about dinner but Baessler said he could not recall Quick saying that if Mamie went to Kingston she need not come back. It was alleged that he made that statement to Detective Wagner but he denied it on the stand.

Mamie coaxed Quick, she went over and sat on his lap and finally Quick said she might go if she would return in time to get dinner.

Baessler said he thought they had drinks of liquor at Quick's at that time and also had hard cider.

Came to Kingston

They came to Kingston and after visiting the hospital went to Sanky McGrane's and had a drink. They then went to the restaurant and on the way finished the apple and gin they had with them. At the restaurant they had a few more drinks, all three of them and after filling up the bottles again, he and Mamie went back to Quick's. They left Mike at the store. It was about 1:30 when they arrived at the Quick place. Quick sat in the rocker in the dining room smoking. Baessler said Quick "kicked about our staying so long" and asked if it took all that time to go to Kingston and back. He said something about it being a good thing she came back because he had another woman to take Mamie's place. He said he had expected Mamie back at noon.

While Mamie got dinner he and Quick talked and Quick asked Baessler to stay to dinner. While waiting they drank cider and the whiskey. There was no argument and dinner prepared he and Mamie ate. Quick said he did not feel like eating.

Baessler said after he finished he got up and Mamie asked him to bring Mike up for chicken dinner. He went for Mike and at the restaurant they had a couple of drinks and filled up one of the empty bottles and returned. Mike at that time was "three-quarters drunk." They took no guns with them. On the way back they went through Pataukunk and not until near Quick's did he notice that the car steered hard and he thought he had a flat tire. He did not look at the tire when he arrived but went to the house.

Quick was in the rocking chair in the dining room along side the couch in the rear corner of the room. Mary was upstairs.

Baessler said he sat down in a rocker near the dining room table in the front of the house and Mike sat at the left of the dining room door by the wood box.

Quick said, "Did you come to take Mamie away?" and Baessler said he replied, "No, I just brought Mike up for supper."

When Mrs. Fish came down he told her about the flat tire and remarked that he needed a jack.

"She prepared Mike's eats and brought them in on a plate and put them on the dining room table," said the witness. Mike started to eat.

Baessler then asked Quick for use of his jack and Quick said, "Mamie knows where it is, get the flashlight and go down and show him where it is".

At that time it was dark, the lights were lighted and the shades were down. They went out to the garage. When they got there he saw that the tire was gone. Both he and Mamie laughed when he said he had not known the tire was gone. The garage was locked and they returned after about fifteen minutes to the house. He was ahead.

"Quite a Rumpus."

When he reached the stone step at the kitchen door he said he heard "quite a rumpus." Mrs. Fish said "what is going on" and he opened the door and went in. Just as he was to enter he heard Quick say twice, "He is hitting me". Baessler said he entered as quickly as he could and went to the dining room door. He did not run but he went as fast as he could and looked in the dining room.

"Mr. Quick was lying on the floor. Mike was by his head part hitting him. The table was upset facing the kitchen door and the cloth was half off and food about half eaten was on the floor," said Baessler.

He then demonstrated Quick's position on the floor.

Mrs. Fish was behind Baessler at the kitchen door. He said he went in the dining room first and Quick's face was a mass of blood. Quick said "Mamie dear he is hitting me—he is hitting me", and then Baessler said he pushed Mamie back into the kitchen and said, "Stay there, this is nothing for you to see", and grabbed Mike and pulled him off Quick and out the room.

"Mike was hitting him. That last one was an awful one—sock—just like that. He never murmured. I saw three or four blows hit. I grabbed Mike, the arm with the jack. I thought he might take a shot at me and I pushed or drug him out," said Baessler in describing the scene.

He said to Mike, "For God's sake why did you do it".

Mike he said replied, "The old —— of a —— is no good. He is better off dead".

Then Mamie asked what it started over and he said they could not seem to find anything out whether there was "a chewing match or what and we stood there, we were dazed. I can't express my feeling", said Baessler. They stood there for perhaps 20 minutes and then Mike said, "Help me pull him down the stairs and make it look like an accident" and the witness said he and Mike went in and "we drug him out to the steps". He said he took Quick under the right arm and Conner took him under the left and they took Quick out.

"I rested his head on the top step, opened the cellar door, one was up, Mike shoved him down", concluded Baessler.

He said they all returned to the house and he said "you have done an awful thing, let's get out of here quick, let's clean up" and he asked Mamie for cloths and they went to work to clean up. Mamie started to assist in cleaning up the blood but could not so she straightened up the house. She found Quick's glasses and Conner said to give them to him. Baessler said he did not know what he did with them, but Conner was out for a time while he was down on his hands and knees cleaning up.

Mike did not have his hat and overcoat on at that time and he denied that Conner had stood outside the door while the cleaning up took place. He told of them all taking the things used to clean up with and putting them in the car.

Asked as to the appearance of Quick's body when it was picked up and taken out the witness said:

"He was dead. He did not breathe, the last words out of his mouth were 'Mamie dear he is hitting me'. His muscles were relaxed and he was not breathing".

They did not stop to fix the tire but drove away. About three quarters of a mile away they became mired in the mud and he told of putting the things over the fence and being towed out and taken home. When they became stuck someone mentioned the stuff in the car and "they" handed them out to Baessler on the embankment and he put them behind the fence. He said he gave the truck-driver $2 at the restaurant for taking them home and then they went in and he said they all had a couple of drinks. "I had a good one", he said. The drinks were drunk in the cellar.

Next morning he opened the store and had a few drinks and then borrowed Eddie Rose's car and went to the garage and secured help to get his car out of the mud and repaired. He returned to the store and got a couple more drinks and then took Mamie Fish to Kingston in Rose's car. After they passed the road on which he had been stuck Mamie said, "are you going to leave the rags and things there" and he replied, "O gee, yes that is right. I never thought of that" and they turned around and drove up and got them and took them past Quick's and hid them. After his arrest he said he had shown Abe Molyneaux, Lawson and Simmons the place where the things were first hidden behind the stone wall.

He stopped at the hospital and took Mamie to McGrane's and left her there. He said he gave her twenty dollars and they had a few drinks and he left Mamie "in charge of Vernon Brodhead". He said he thought he had told Brodhead that and he smiled. He remained there about half an hour and left. There was no conversation about any letter. That night he and Mike retired about 7 or 8 o'clock and the next morning about 2 o'clock he took Mike to Stamford. He gave Mike no money. Mike usually asked for money on such occasions but he did not this time. He gave Mike a quart of gin and left him. He had no talk with Mike about keeping his mouth shut.

Tuesday night he went to the hospital and to McGrane's. Mamie asked him if he heard anything and he said no. At that time she mentioned writing a letter to Quick asking him to come after her and Baessler said he told her it would be a good thing and suggested she write it then but she said she would write it later and mail it when no one saw her.

Again Wednesday he went to Kingston and to McGrane's and saw Mamie. Nothing was said about the letter. They had a few drinks and he returned home. That day he had been to Fred Rose's in Ellenville.

Thursday, January 26, he remained in his place of business all day. Fred Rose came in the evening and they came to Kingston about 5 o'clock and after visiting the hospital they went to Sanky McGrane's and he saw Mamie. They had three or four drinks and he and Rose went to the Elks' Club and later returned to McGrane's. There they had a few more drinks and Mamie said she had sent the letter. They left about 12 o'clock and drove to Kerhonkson and Rose let Baessler out of the car near the Anderson store and he walked home and went to bed. He had a drink or two in the cellar before he retired.

After he had been asleep he heard a racket and someone told him to get up. He told of dressing and going downstairs and of being questioned and later being brought to jail. He said at no time that night did he say, "Is Uriah Quick dead?" He said he was asked where he had been Sunday, January 22 and he said at Quick's.

Before leaving Kerhonkson he said he gave District Attorney Murray his keys to give to Ed Rose so that Rose could take care of his dog and cat.

At that point an adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this morning.

Baessler Nervous As Case Continues

prosecution in evidence it had taken Mr. Murray a half hour to read it. There had been testimony that the defendant looked at it for 15 or 20 minutes and read it over. He said he wanted to show that he could not have read it in that time and that it would take the defendant an hour to read it. He did not press the reading further.

He denied that he had told Detective Wagner on one day that he had asked Conner on January 22 why he had done it and that Conner had replied that when Baessler and Mamie went out he thought it was the signal. He also denied that he ever told the detective that while they were cleaning up the floor he, Baessler, had asked Mike to go out and see if Quick were dead. He also denied he had told them that he had asked Conner if he, Conner, had taken Quick over. He never told them that he told Mary Fish all must keep their mouths shut.

As to the conversation alleged to have been made by him in regard to Mary sending a letter and going to Quick's and finding the body and notifying the taxi driver, he said he had never told the detective that. He said, "she suggested the letter."

He denied that he had told Mr. Wagner that last summer Mary Fish had told him that she would get Quick's property on his death and that he, Baessler, had replied "we will knock him off." He said he never told the detective that there had been a plan to have Quick go riding with Mary Fish and that Mike and Baessler would hold them up and Conner would "pop Quick on the head" and then they would run the car over a cliff so as to look like an accident to Quick.

There was no conversation on January 22 on the way to Quick's and he never told the detective that at that time he had said "Quick must be sore at us" and that Mamie replied, "To hell with him, he ain't worth living with" and that he had replied to her at that time, "Maybe if he gets fresh tonight we will fix him up". He said he never told the detective that.

When arraigned before Judge Traver and charged with murder, first degree, Baessler said he was removed from jail and Sergeant Hopkins talked to him. Hopkins told him he said to plead guilty as all the others had, that would be easier. Baessler said the Trooper told him he would need no lawyer and could save $100. Baessler said Judge Traver had asked him whether he was guilty or not and he had replied he was guilty. Then Judge Traver asked him if he wanted a lawyer but told him he would not need one "until the grand jury or something" concluded the witness.

Mr. Loughran then took up cross examination. He asked about the disposition of the pots and whether he and Mary had not stopped at Quick's on Monday morning when they went to hide the thing. Baessler said they had not stopped.

Quick had refused to eat with him on January 22 and the witness said Quick was suspicious of the frequent visits of Mary to the hospital and said he would investigate into the matter later. He denied that the dining-room door was closed on the evening of the murder. He said he had pushed Mary out.

Asked as to the position of Conner at the time it was alleged Quick was struck by Conner, the witness said Quick was on the floor on his left side with his body partly supported by his left arm when he first saw him and that Conner was behind him by Quick's head. Next time he looked in Quick was flat on the floor. He said Conner had the blackjack in his hand and he saw three or four blows struck. He denied he had carried Quick out by the feet and Conner had him by the head as Mary had testified to. The light in the dining room was a hanging lamp.

Baessler said he had not given Conner money when he left him at Stamford as he usually did. Conner used to ask for money but did not on the last trip.

Baessler was asked what meaning was conveyed to his mind by the statement "taken for a ride." He said it meant nothing. It was a thing which you read in the papers and was just a saying. It meant nothing more "than when I say pop on the nose, I don't mean I am going to hit you on the nose. It is a saying." He said he had never used the expression to "roll anyone." He said he might have used the expression to take some one for a ride as a joke. That expression did not mean getting rid of a person.

He said he did not recall a chicken dinner in Kerhonkson when Mike went and came home and was tripped up and hurt his face and skinned his nose. He said he frequently did trip up Mike, especially when he had been drinking. He considered it a joke. Until after his arrest he said he did not smoke cigarettes, Mamie did.

On January 22 Mamie asked him to stay to dinner at Quick's. Quick did not ask him.

Recess to 2 o'clock.

EXIT BOOTLEG BEER

The beer racket is said to be on its last legs. This is true at least in cities where those who make and sell the new 3.2 per cent beer are trying to keep the business clean. It is probably true in most cities, because the pressure in that direction is not only moral but economic.

"Why are you closing up?" an investigator asked a bootleg brewer who said he was running his final batch of beer. "Because I can't compete with the legal breweries," was the reply. "The big brewery, with better facilities and no 'protection' to pay, doing everything in the open, can produce and distribute so much cheaper that there's no comparison." He had no regrets, either, this racketeer said. "This has been a big headache. I can live in peace from now on. And I can hang up my gat."

This is one of the reforms sought by people who had a moral purpose in advocating legalized beer. Such testimony is reassuring. Another agreeable development is the report that the government is likely to get more income from beer than it counted on—maybe $250,000,000 or $300,000,000 a year.

CAN'T KILL IDEAS.

Hitler and his Nazi leaders would do well to go into the silence and meditate upon the words addressed to German students by Helen Keller. "History has taught you nothing if you think you can kill ideas," she wrote. "Tyrants have tried to do that often before, and the ideas have risen up in their might and destroyed them." The ideas in the books now being burned in the process of "purifying" German literature "have seeped through a million channels and will continue to quicken other minds," continues Miss Keller.

It is always curious to see human beings trying to fight ideas with material measures—censoring and burning books, banning speeches, arresting speakers. If the disliked ideas are false, the surest way to check their influence is to allow them free circulation along with the truth. In such a contest, truth must win. Ideas may be side-tracked by making other ideas more attractive. They cannot be killed by martyring the people who hold and express them or by physical destruction of the means by which they are disseminated.

LUGGING LUGGAGE.

"Hand baggage is still toted by hand," exclaims an American traveling about the country. "Why, I wonder, don't they use the trucks they have? It seems so silly to see men staggering a quarter of a mile under burdens that could just as well go on wheels."

This is another of the little details in which efficient Americans lag behind their supposedly slower British cousins. Luggage which has been checked for through transportation usually is wheeled from one train to another, but the suit cases and bags which go along on the Pullman with the traveler are carried down the platform and through the station by foot and hand power. In England, the American traveler is at first surprised and then pleased to see his bags and boxes and cases piled neatly on a small truck and trundled to the train or the cab.

Are Americans so busy being efficient about important things that they can't be bothered with being efficient in little details? Or are we not quite so efficient as we have imagined?

INVERTED MOUNTAINS

Captain C. B. Mayo, commanding the U. S. naval oil tanker Ramapo, recently reported finding a new deep in the bed of the Pacific which is only 1,299 feet less than the greatest known depth. It is a trench in the ocean's floor near the coast of Japan, directly across the Pacific from San Diego, Cal. By repeated use of the sonic depth finder a depth of 32,195 feet was measured.

The floor of the ocean generally resembles a [illegible] plain. It averages less than [illegible] feet below sea level. The trenches which extend to such great depths are like inverted mountain [illegible]. They drop off sharply from the ocean bottom. A number of them have been located, the greatest being northeast of Mindanao Island in the Philippines, with a depth of 34,[illegible] feet. The deepest charted trench in the Atlantic is off Puerto Rico and has been measured at 27,972 feet.

These trenches compare very well with the 29,[illegible] feet of Mount Everest, highest mountain in the world. From Everest's crest to the lowest point measured in the ocean's floor there is a span of 12 miles. Man has soared above the topmost peak of the earth's crust. He has gone only a little distance beneath the sea. The seismic disturbances which have created mountains and ocean valleys have given him interesting subjects for scientific study and observation, but they have not interfered greatly with his more or less humble routine.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

You have been told that your proper blood pressure is 100 plus your age, so that if you are 20 it should be 120, and if 40, then 140.

Naturally this would mean that if you were 70 it should be 170.

However in older people it is considered normal when the blood pressure is 100 plus half the age, thus an individual of 70 should be 135.

As a matter of fact your doctor will tell you that while 120 to 125 for an old person is "safer," nevertheless where the blood pressure is a little higher than than normal, say 140 to 160, the individual seems to enjoy life more.

Dr. R. Scheffer, Capetown, South Africa, points out that in old age, as in later life, raised blood pressure can almost be considered an advantage.

Old people whose blood pressure is high are much more energetic and useful members of the community than those in whom the blood pressure is low.

Old people with blood pressures between 160 and 180 seldom complain, while those with blood pressure of 120 and less are always ailing.

Provided the heart is regular, the difference between the blood pressure with arm band on and with arm band off is the right amount, and there is no kidney ailment, the high blood pressure will not cause trouble or require treatment.

This doesn't mean that as we grow older we should all have blood pressure higher than normal, but that there are people in whom, at all ages, the pressure is normally or naturally high. These people enjoy perfect health, provided their pressure is not interfered with. If attempts are made to lower the pressure by the use of diet and drugs, these people may begin to worry about "their high blood pressure" and get less joy out of life.

The thought then is that high blood pressure is "normal" in many people, and if there is no heart, bloodvessel, or kidney ailment, nothing should be said or done about it.

A low blood pressure in old age need not then be a matter of satisfaction, because investigation shows that these individuals are always ailing.

The main thought is that high blood pressure means nothing in itself if there is no other condition present; in fact it is of real advantage to the body in giving every part its full supply of blood.

The White Cockatoo

by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: Three murders now centered around an attempt to secure the token by means of which Sue Tally must identify herself to her brother, whom she has not seen since childhood. The token represents her share of her father's fortune. Francis Tally suddenly arrived to refused permission to the police to take Sue to a safer place. Back in the hotel lent is the scene of the crimes Jim Sandeen, himself only just relieved of suspicion, learns from Sue that she has lost the token. Sandeen tells that his signature on the hotel register is a forgery. Sandeen goes upstairs.

Chapter 33
SCARLET SLIPPER

LORN and Tally had drifted into the chilly parlor again, and Sue had made some excuse about taking off her coat and was also coming upstairs. I did not wait for her until I had passed beyond the gallery and into the corridor and thus was beyond the range of vision of anyone on the first floor.

When we reached the little niche in the corridor I stopped. There was no one in sight; we were visible from only one or two doors, and they were closed; not even a policeman was to be seen up and down the length of the shadowy deserted corridor.

"Now then," I said, "tell me all about the token."

"But I don't know," said Sue in what was almost a wail. "It is just gone. And I thought it was so safe."

"When did you lose it?"

"Sometime last night."

"You don't mean anyone got into your room during the night?" I was frightened. I had her by the arm, gripping it so hard that she winced.

"Oh, no, no! The door was locked and bolted all night."

"When, then?" I asked, only a little relieved.

"I don't know. I looked at it—the token, you know—yesterday about noon. Last evening after dinner you told me the priest had been in my room, but the place where I—where I had hidden the token—"

"Your slipper," I said grimly.

"What?"

"Of course. One of your scarlet slippers with the silver heels. It was probably in a hollow in the heel."

"But you—how could you know that?"

I hated taking time, especially when it was so simple.

"Oh, you wore them so much—wore them that first night when you had been out to walk on the bridge—would you wear scarlet evening slippers with narrow high heels for a walk along cobblestones unless there was a reason?" I was impatient.

"But I didn't wear them in the daytime," she protested.

"Naturally not," I said. "But there wasn't so much danger then—or you probably thought there was not. Or perhaps you removed it during the daytime. Or perhaps it was very well hidden. Go on—when did you discover it had been stolen?"

She looked at me a moment before she said: "It was well hidden. I felt safe about it—when I glanced at it (it was in the heel of the right slipper)—it showed no signs of being tampered with. I thought I could have told at once if it had been removed.

"So I said the priest had taken nothing from my room. I only discovered it late last night. I felt I must be sure, of course—and I—opened the heel and the token was gone."

"WHAT did you do?"

"Nothing. There was nothing I could do then. Everyone had gone to bed; I—I was afraid to venture out into the black corridors." She shivered, and I said quickly, taking a long breath at the thought of what might have happened had she done so:

"That was right."

I felt rather as if I had walked without knowing it to the very edge of a precipice and only looked down at the last step. Suppose she'd gone out into the corridors—murder-haunted—black—

"That was right!" I repeated inadequately. Then that feeling of urgency, that there was not much time, nudged me, and I went on: "But you should have told us at once this morning."

She hesitated, looking at me with steady but troubled eyes.

"But I couldn't tell Lorn."

"Couldn't—oh—oh, I see. After all, he's in the employ of your brother. And your brother's interests would come first with him."

"Exactly," said Sue. "And I couldn't search the priest's room this morning myself. I was still, somehow—" she paused, and her breath caught a little as she admitted — "afraid — afraid — you had warned me too well. But I was just going to tell you in the White Salon, you know when—" She stopped completely there.

So that was why the priest was murdered. He had had the token, and someone knew he had it and murdered him. A small incident in the lust for that waiting gold.

This left three possibilities—that is, if we granted that the priest had stolen the token, and I thought I was safe in doing that—first, the murderer had taken it from the priest, and it was in his possession.

Second, it had been on the body of the priest, and the police now had it: this I thought was highly improbable, as the murderer had had hours after the priest's death to search the body unobserved. Parenthetically I thought of the hideously uneasy night I had passed trying to sleep in that death-haunted wing.

The third possibility was that the priest had hidden the token successfully or had passed it immediately to a possible accomplice; this last was also unlikely.

"Do you want to tell me what it is?" I asked rather diffidently.

"You mean you want to try to find it again for me?"

She considered this gravely.

"IT'S rather dangerous knowledge," she said at last. "And I must be able to tell Francis that I have kept it a complete secret. That, of course, is the pressing thing. I didn't intend to ask you to find it for me. I think that's rather a hopeless task now.

"And besides I—I have already placed you in too much danger. The thing I wanted to talk to you about is what to do now. What to tell Francis. Oh, it's—it's so dreadfully ironical. If he'd only got here one day sooner. He's waiting now, I suppose. He hinted that when we returned from interviewing the police we would go into what he called the—'formalities.' He means, of course, the token."

It was true that that was the urgent and immediate thing. How to meet Francis' inquiries at that moment. To tell him lamely that the thing had been stolen but that we were searching for it would be to convince Francis once and for all that Sue was only another impostor.

"You'll have to bluff your brother. Get the papers from Lovschiem: make him hand them over; give those to your brother to digest. Then refuse to show your own token until he shows you his—I gather they are identical? The chances are he will be reluctant to show his. He'll be afraid it is a trap. However, you'll hold out; you'll say you also are afraid of a trap—or rather you'll indicate it tactfully. Don't hesitate for an instant. Be firm and cool and sure of yourself."

"Yes, I can do that," said Sue.

And it was true; she could—no one better.

"But suppose—suppose he believes me—suppose he is ready to match his token with mine. Suppose," she said with a ghost of a smile which did not lighten the tense look in her eyes and the taut line around her mouth, "suppose he calls my bluff."

"He won't," I said with more confidence than I felt. "He'll want to think about it awhile—talk it over with Lorn. And in the meantime perhaps—"

Her eyes quickened, and she grasped at the hint that I had not intended to convey.

"Do you mean—" she whispered —"that you—that perhaps—that you know something—are on the trail of—"

"No, no," I said at once. "I've only a faint notion. Don't bank on it. Don't hope for anything. I mean it. I'm counting on Lorn and Lorn only. Unless the Paris detectives get here first."

It had not convinced her. I could see by the eager, questioning look in her eyes that it had not. I felt vaguely embarrassed, for I pretended to no ability as a detective.

Still, two and two make four, by whomever added. It was the uncertainty of the digits that troubled me.

Sandeen asks Sue, tomorrow, some mystifying questions.

PLAN QUESTION SERVICE AT REDEEMER CHURCH.

A question service will be held at the final Sunday evening services for the season at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer Sunday. Among the questions to be answered by Pastor Brandorff are:

Is the depression making people more religious?

How shall I learn what God wants me to do with my life?

Is the election next Tuesday of any particular interest to Christians?

How do you explain the words of Jesus, "How callest thou Me good? There is none good but one, that is God." Does this not indicate that Jesus regarded Himself human and sinful?

Is not love the most important factor for successful marriage?

What is Hitler trying to do with the church in Germany?

A question of Jesus, "Why hast thou forsaken Me?" a question many are asking today.

A church service will be held on Ascension Day, Thursday, May 25, at 7:45 p. m.

The teachers and officers of the Sunday Bible school will meet Friday evening at the home of Miss Ruth Greenburgh, 118 Second avenue.

The Intermediate Luther League will hold an entertainment Friday evening, May 26, at which time the girls will present six short comedy sketches.

Stone Ridge Dance.

This point in Canada, strange as it seems, is 45 miles southeast of the city of Detroit. Canada thus extends farther south than the southmost points of 11 states in the United States—Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Several other states extend farther north than the southmost point in Canada. They are Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska and Wyoming.

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

THE geographical aspects of the inflation controversy in congress present a picture which some politicians think may be highly significant.

On this dominating question, viewed by many as embodying the central issue of the whole Roosevelt program, the leadership and most of the votes for the administration came from the west and south, and nearly all of the opposition from the east.

So striking was the geographical division that it pretty well wiped out party lines. In other words, the same sections which stood almost solidly for Mr. Roosevelt's nomination at Chicago, and entirely solidly for his election last November, again rallied to his support.

This is especially interesting in view of the predictions of some of his followers during and after the campaign that his political strategy in the White House would be to combine west and south, leaving the east to fall into line or not, as it chose.

One published prediction expressed the same thought in this way: that the President would hope for the help of the east in putting into effect some rather sweeping changes, but, failing to get it, would turn his back on the east, knowing he could count on majority support elsewhere.

It would be going a long way to say that Mr. Roosevelt actually has turned his back on the east, although on the inflation issue the first condition for such a procedure would seem to have been fulfilled. The east, as it expressed itself in senate votes, has turned its back on him.

Reviewing The Record

Take the developments step by step:

The first inflationary proposal of the session which made a real impression was presented by a western republican, Norbeck of South Dakota.

The measure on which the test finally came was fathered by a southern democrat, Thomas of Oklahoma.

The opposition round robin was originated, apparently, by Reed of Pennsylvania, and signed by three other republicans, all from the east. Notably absent was the signature of the republican senate leader, McNary of Oregon.

One of the most powerful voices raised for inflation was that of a western republican, Borah of Idaho, and one of the most insistent opponents was an eastern democrat, Tydings of Maryland.

The exceptions to this geographical, non-party line-up were so few that they could almost be counted on one hand.

Was Farley Right?

Important as it is with regard to the inflation issue alone, this sort of division is even more interesting in so far as it may indicate what is to come later.

When the political leaders of two great sections throw aside party lines to unite on so crucial and basic an issue as this, political analysts must take careful note.

They must recall the words of Democratic Chairman Farley, speaking in New York during the campaign, that a great new party was forming "out there," and ponder how nearly correct he may have been.

Hudson River Day Line To Resume On May 26

The Hudson River Day Line, whose fleet of gleaming white ships is well known to thousands of travelers, will resume its New York-Albany service on May 26 and will offer a series of additional trips over previous seasons, at fares that have been radically reduced, according to an announcement made yesterday by V. S. Olcott.

On Sunday, May 21, the steamer Peter Stuyvesant will make a pre-season excursion to Indian Point, Bear Mountain, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, leaving the Day Line's terminal at West 42nd street at 10 a. m. and West 129th street 20 minutes later. The United Singers of New York, a group of 100 voices, and the 40 piece American Legion band of Hudson county, N. J., will be guests of the line on the trip.

On Friday, May 26, the first regular boat will leave at 9:20 a. m. for Albany. The following day will witness the first southbound trip from Albany to New York. Regular sailings will be maintained thereafter until the end of the season, which closes the middle of October.

Beginning on Saturday, May 27, the company will operate daily excursions between New York and Poughkeepsie and intermediate points including Indian Point, Bear Mountain, Newburgh and West Point. The latter call will be omitted on Sundays.

Added features of the Day Line service during the coming summer include a late afternoon boat on Saturdays and Sundays and an early evening boat every Sunday. The later afternoon boat on Saturday and Sunday will leave New York at 4 p. m., beginning July 1, going as far as Poughkeepsie. It will offer a round trip to Indian Point and one-way service northbound to Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. The early evening boat will run every Sunday, beginning May 28, leaving New York at 7 p. m., going as far as Indian Point and return the same evening, to reach West 42nd street, New York, at 11:30 p. m. This latter trip combines an early evening sail up the Hudson and a moonlight sail down the river on the same evening.

Special excursions will also leave New York at 8:30 a. m. on Sundays for Indian Point and Bear Mountain.

Mr. Olcott said that the company is making every effort to give people the utmost in service this summer at fares that have been reduced to meet present day needs. The Day Line fleet, including the Hendrick Hudson, Peter Stuyvesant, Robert Fulton, Alexander Hamilton and Chauncey M. DePew, have been thoroughly overhauled, reconditioned and repainted during their winter's layup and are now waiting for the start of the season.

The Day Line's well known fleet of vessels will, as in previous seasons, also be employed by church organizations, clubs, business groups, etc., which often charter an entire ship to care for their members.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Shakespeare said it first, but Mervyn Leroy repeated it the other day. "The play's the thing."

The diminutive director who looks like a boy and smokes big cigars was talking about this and that in pictures, and I don't recall how Shakespeare got into the discussion, but there he was.

"You can have all the million-dollar set-ups, the gorgeous displays and the rest of the trimmings, but give me a fine play, a good troupe of actors and four bare walls," said Mervyn, "and I'll turn out paying entertainment for the screen."

Back To Avon

This all began with a little conversation about "dirt" in pictures, and the notion of some producers that the public is crying for it. Mervyn doesn't think so—and he called again on Shakespeare.

"The play's the thing," but how the play is presented makes the difference between "dirt" and fine entertainment, he argues.

"Some people," he elucidated, "think everything pertaining to sex must be dirt. That's wrong, of course. It's not clever to direct dirty plays. The great thing is to direct a play concerning sex in such a way that any suggestion of offensiveness is deleted and the picture still holds a wallop."

"Tonight or Never," starring Gloria Swanson, was one of Leroy's pictures, risque but not "dirty" in the usual sense of that term.

Mervyn hasn't yet had to make a picture with four bare walls for a set—Hollywood is still affording realistic backgrounds—and he hasn't always had good plays. He prefers actors to "faces."

"Good looks are secondary now," he said. "Look at Edward G. Robinson, Paul Muni—I could make a list of them. And Aline MacMahon. She's no beauty, but she's great!"

In Ancient Greece

Goings-on among the Amazons and the Greeks in 800 B. C. are the basis of "The Warrior's Husband," a new film which is satirical if not always polite, contains broad comedy with Marjorie Rambeau and Ernest Truex, and offers Elissa Landi in a buoyantly youthful mood contrasting to her previous tragic emotionalism.

When Janet Gaynor was Mrs. Lydell Peck they lived in a house ready-furnished on a lease. As a new divorcee, she has purchased a house of her own and is now reported "reveling in domesticity," buying rugs and drapes and such.

MILTON

Milton, May 16—The big book whose decorations were the work of Mrs. Elsie Hallock which aroused so much admiring comment at last summer's state fair will be seen in Kingston soon. It will be part of an exhibit which will be on display at the Home Bureau advisory council meeting on May 23. Home Bureau women and their friends are invited to attend this meeting.

The Milton Fire Engine Company will hold a dance in St. James Hall Saturday, May 20. Ward Hamson's orchestra will furnish the music.

The Milton Grange celebrated Founder's Day and the 60th anniversary of the founding of the State Grange with a fine program Monday evening arranged by the Service and Hospitality Committee with Mrs. Harry Vandervoort in charge. The program featured several vocal and musical selections by some of the best local talent. There were also several addresses by well known speakers. Refreshments were served at the close of the program.

At the annual meeting of the Milton Fire Company Tuesday evening Irving Clarke was elected president. He succeeds Carl Hergert whose business obligations make it difficult for him to attend meetings so that he declined to serve again. Keates Young was elected vice president to succeed Thomas Gibney. Other officers reelected are Harry Lawton, secretary, and Curtis Northrip, treasurer. Fred Theill was re-elected fire chief and Philip Lyon, trustee to serve three years.

Miss Eleanor Young is confined to her home with scarlet fever. It is said to be a very light case of the disease. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

Mrs. Edgar M. Clarke was elected chairman of the Milton Home Bureau unit at its meeting Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Milo Hepworth was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Clarence Dayton secretary and treasurer. Works for next year were discussed. Plans were made for an exhibit from the local unit at the advisory council meeting to be held in Kingston May 23. John Manion, Mrs. Grover Ferguson and Mrs. Percy Bunker were appointed a committee to have charge of assembling and arranging this exhibit.

The regular meeting of the local W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Harold Clarke Friday afternoon. Miss Anna Raymond addressed the meeting. Her subject was "Remodelling Mothers and Daughters."

Friday evening the Milton Friends Cemetery Corporation held its annual meeting at the home of Charles R. Taber.

Dr. A. C. J. Gervais spent several days the past week with relatives in Burlington, Vt.

Oliver Drew of California is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Fred Vail, Sr.

About 25 members of the Community Garden Club enjoyed a picnic at the home of Mrs. Jane Clarke and Miss Lulu Clarke on Thursday. After visiting the flower gardens of Miss Charlotte Tuthill and Mrs. William Lais, a picnic lunch was served on the spacious lawn of the Clarke home.

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. C. Gervais have returned to their home here after a pleasant month spent in Miami, Florida.

After the Sunday morning service in the Milton Presbyterian Church an important congregational meeting was held in charge of the Rev. Everett Le Compte, pastor of the Marlborough church, and moderator of the Milton church. The purpose of the meeting was to decide whether or not the Rev. Kenneth Fox, who has been supplying the pulpit for the past two years, should be called as full time pastor of the church. He will graduate from the Biblical University in New York in June. The members of the church and congregation were unanimous in their desire to have the Rev. Mr. Fox as a supply pastor until he may be ordained as a full time pastor of the church. He will have the use of the parsonage while acting as a supply pastor. It was learned at this meeting that the church had been left $1,000 by the late Frank M. Dayton. The same amount was left both the Methodist and All Saints Episcopal churches.

Edward Young, Sr., is confined to his home with serious illness. The home is quarantined on account of scarlet fever which the daughter is ill with. She is better at this writing.

Twenty-four children attended the toxin anti-toxin clinic held in the Marlborough school Thursday, May 11. Fourteen of the children were under one year of age. Dr. A. S. Ferguson had charge of the clinic. He was assisted by Miss Minna Strohman, community nurse, and the Misses Yossie, Dowd and DuBois.

FASHIONS by ELEANOR GUNN

Absolutely Dotty

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

Polka dots are perennials. They are springing up again to lend variety to suits. Light dots on dark grounds and vice-versa, polka dots in silk and sheer perky cottons—these two blouses are typical of new polka dot offerings.

White dots on a brown ground is the choice for the silk crepe blouse at left. A white pique bow and brown woolen buttons are details.

Red dots on white organdie is the plan in the other blouse. The full sleeves and gathered jabot make it look cooler and sheerer.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Lapels are widened and considerably raised in more youthful linen suits for that very young and still broader shoulder look. One revers detail is double-notch, chosen for an especially high and wide revers lapel.

Tiny cross-checks, shepherd's checks, Tattersall checks and glen check-plaids are specific patterns observed in suits and topcoats. This is interesting coming now when "stripes" lead off with gusto.

Organdie Reaches the Years of Discretion

It is interesting to see the great attention shown cotton dresses for formal wear, especially organdie, with most attractive dresses developed in embroidered organdie in black and with evenly spaced embroidered motifs in green and white, for example, it has a very sophisticated look, and when made in crisply tailored fashion disproves any charge that organdie is only for ingenues and those who affect debutante styles.

Play Girl Dresses Go In For Charm

New York—Honest to goodness, serious-minded gardeners do their cultivating of the soil in their oldest clothes. But your amateur gardener, living up to her reputation for being quite contrary, dresses up for her garden culture. She not only has swanky looking gloves, but fresh looking frocks as colorful as the flowers she is assisting to bloom. Sometimes she has pajamas, not frocks, but their decorative value is the same. Some of the nicest garden frocks copy the little girls play frock idea and have matching panties and wrap around skirts. Nearly all garden frocks make a point of having ample pocket room.

Last year there was a hue and cry over tennis dresses. Women who were never on a court in their lives were wearing tennis dresses for many occasions. This season's excitement centers around the bicycle dress. There is little or no difference in the type of dress worn. They are both play frocks, it gives them new interest to be linked to the last fad of the hour. We are and expect to ride wheels and do a bit of roller skating on the side, to say nothing of being adept with the bow and arrow. All these pleasant pastimes, not to mention ping pong and sitting on the veranda merely dreaming seem to call for cotton dresses, not too tailored, but on the other hand, far from fussed-up. One gathers that the 1933 summer girl is in a somewhat mellow mood. She has ringlets and big hats and cool cottons, ruffles and sprig muslins to make her forget her masculine fling and help her to be a girl again just for the summer day.

Coton voile has stepped into the sunlight and been applauded for getting out of the house dress class. This was made possible by introducing more attractive designs and also by designers who saw in this old reliable member of the sheer family possibilities that would appeal to women who find it necessary to live in week end bags a good part of the time.

Talks to parents

Objecting To Caresses

By ALICE JUDSON PEALE

There comes a time when children, especially boys, dislike the kisses and petting they enjoyed when they were little. Often this shyness or embarrassment begins at about six or seven.

The boy who put his arms about his mother, who leaned against her affectionately and kissed her before company, who had no objection whatsoever to sitting on her lap, now decides he doesn't like these things any more. Vaguely he feels that he is too big to be treated this way.

Many a mother is hurt when her boy edges away from her or brushes her kisses from his cheek with the back of his hand. She does not realize that he is merely beginning to love her in a different and more grown-up way.

He is still very much dependent upon her affection but he now wants that affection shown to him in other ways. He wants her to be interested in his successes, he wants her to approve of him. He needs to talk to her about the things that trouble him and to have her explain away his difficulties. He needs her as much as ever, in short, but temporarily at least he is through with kisses.

Many children who feel embarrassed by public demonstration of affection often enjoy it and indeed crave it at special emotional moments and when they are quite alone with mother. They merely have come to feel a certain reserve before others.

Occasionaly children object to being petted in reaction to the way they have been treated otherwise. Parents who allow themselves to fly into tempers and to be over harsh with their children at one moment cannot expect them to melt with love when their own mood happens to be one of affection.

FAIR AND WARMER BLANKET WASHING TIME NEWS EXTRA

Thrifty Wives Everywhere Get Wonderful Results this Easy Way

BLANKET WASHING TIME—and everywhere women are using the thrifty Lux way that leaves blankets clean and fluffy and soft . . . costs next to nothing!

Cleaning is so expensive—Lux washing so very economical. Of course, cake-soap rubbing—or soaps containing harmful alkali—tend to shrink and mat woolen fibres, leave blankets harsh and stiff. Tend to fade colors, too. But Lux has no harmful alkali, and with the rich, fast-working Lux suds there's no rubbing. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux!

Mrs. L. R. Walker, New Orleans, Louisiana: "I have been using Lux for blankets as well as for all my woolens and silks for years, and I am sure it is due to Lux that they have stayed so beautifully soft and new. I have blankets that I bought just after I was married, and honestly, you would think I had bought them this year."

MRS. H. C. SEGUR

Mrs. S. P. Vatcher, Lynn, Mass.: "I used to send my blankets to the cleaners—I thought that was the only way to keep them nice and fluffy looking. But now, when we have to save every penny, I am washing them with Lux. They look every bit as nice as when they were cleaned—soft and fluffy and colorful."

Mrs. H. C. Segur, Auburn Park, Illinois: "Many a time my blankets have been dragged out when the children want to go on camping trips, picnics, or 'play house.' I don't mind because, no matter how often they are washed with Lux, they come out looking like new."

EXPERT LUX METHOD

Wash each blanket in rich lukewarm Lux suds. Never use hot water. Squeeze the suds through the blanket—do not rub. Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water. Gently squeeze water out, but don't twist. Hang the blanket up. Dry in shade, never near heat.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Lights of NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

Beverly Bayne, all in black and with a bit of black velvet about her throat, was the one who asked, "Have you a reservation?" and on being told none had been made, replied, "I'll find a place for you. Buy tickets at the desk, please." So I turned to the cashier, whose face was vaguely familiar, and asked for three dinner tickets. "Three dollars, please," he said as he pushed the slips through the wicket. Then I recognized him. He was a former Broadway box-office man. But he had changed. He smiled when he said, "You are feeding three others." Thus the introduction to the Actors' Dinner club now in the Hotel Great Northern on Fifty-seventh street between Sixth and Seventh avenues.

Petite, pleasant, piquant Jenny Wren was the waitress at the table at which we were seated. She has danced in the Metropolitan Opera house ballet and for two and half years played in "Abie's Irish Rose." Unemployed, she is helping others of the stage who are also unemployed. Whether she serves paying patrons or those who are eating free, she doesn't know. That is one of the fine things about the Actors' Dinner club. There is no way of telling who pays $1 or nothing at all. Each gets exactly the same meal—an excellent meal, too. And the great and the near-great mingle on terms of the strictest equality.

Herbert Rawlinson, now playing in "When Ladies Meet," acted as master of ceremonies. In proper Broadway style, he introduced some of the celebrities present—that being a nightly feature of the club—including Leon Errol, with the funny legs; Cornelia Otis Skinner, darkly comely and an actress not only by inheritance but in her own right as well; Conway Tearle, now playing in "Dinner at Eight," and his wife, Adele Rowland; Sophia Tucker, who never grows old, and others. Each took a bow and then resumed eating, served of course, by ladies of the stage and screen, with gentlemen of the stage and screen acting as bus boys.

A program goes with dinner at the Actors' Dinner club. It's a different program every night, but the cast is always all-star since those of the stage give freely of their talents. So, while we finished our coffee, Leon Errol gave an imitation of an inebriated gentleman endeavoring to mail a letter with many, many laughs, though never before had he played to an accompaniment of knives and forks. Miss Skinner followed with a portrayal of an American woman on the eve of sailing for Paris, and the mirth muscles of the audience never got a chance to rest. Then came Sophia Tucker and her songs. So, as it may be seen, dining at the Actors' Dinner club is high adventure. And, it can hardly be called charity because so much is given for the small investment.

Trees grow on Broadway at Ninety-fourth street. They are ornaments of a penthouse on the top of the apartment on the southwest corner.

Possibly it's due to small-town upbringing—at home we used to go down to the Big Four depot every day to see No. 7 come in, but I still get something of a thrill from Grand Central terminal. The excitement of the hurrying hundreds is contagious. The confusion, the porters staggering under loads of baggage, suggest far-away places. But multitude of porters and bags gives no sure clew to destination. A distinguished looking gentleman, with a convoy of six well-laden red caps, was going only as far as Albany.

No matter how touching, not all the farewells are real, either. New York is not kind to romance. There are no shady lanes for trysts. But at railroad terminals nobody pays attention to embraces and even lingering kisses.

Spots on Sun Control Climate French Claim

Paris.—That sun spots bring warm weather is the conclusion of French astronomers who have made a long study of the coincidence of the spots and heat waves. Thus far they are unable to give any scientific explanation of this influence.

M. Henri Memery of the Talence observatory, near Bordeaux, has compiled a chart showing conclusively that during the period of the greatest activity of sunspots France has been bathed in sunshine.

The sun turns on itself in, roughly, 25 days, and the sun spots which were seen at the left rim on February 12 and 13 reappeared at the right rim on February 27 and 28. They disappeared by March 10, bringing with their disappearance a cold wave.

Fish Help Farmer to Judge Weather

Napa, Calif.—It is a simple matter for every farmer to become equipped with an accurate rain forecaster, according to Theodore Arighi, rancher.

When the goldfish in Arighi's fish pond swim at the surface of the water, he knows it is going to rain within a few hours. He contends that this system of weather observation has rarely failed.

SHOKAN

Shokan, May 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bloom and daughter of Newburgh called on some of their Shokan friends last Sunday afternoon. The Blooms are former residents of the village, having at one time made their home on what is now the J. A. Harrvig place.

Mrs. John Rainey is having the exterior of her attractive residence near the corner painted. Allen Terwilliger is the artist who is doing the decorating.

A supper and entertainment will be given in the Reformed Church hall on Friday evening, May 26, for the benefit of the Sunday school. Mrs. Daniel Sampson is chairman of the committee which is making the arrangements for this social affair.

H. J. Robeson of New York city was a week-end visitor at the home of Mrs. Mabel Robeson of the upper Boiceville road. Mr. Robeson returned to the city Monday morning in his car.

The sale of the homestead of the late Emma Every to New York city people has been reported here. The Every place, which was put in at an administrator's sale a year ago last fall by Merritt Every and Frank Van Etten of Kingston, son and son-in-law, respectively, of Mrs. Every, is located along the north boulevard in the west end of the village. It is understood that the new owners will make extensive improvements about the farm and conduct a summer boarding house on the place.

On May 16, 1912, the articles of incorporation of the Tongore Cemetery Association were filed. The trustees elected to serve until the time of the first annual meeting were Ashley Van Benschoten and Henry L. Winchell; those for a two-year term were Loring T. Allen, Asa Bishop and Benjamin F. Winchell, while the trustees to serve until the third meeting were Joseph S. Hill, Lorenzo Beesmer and James McMillan. Of the surviving members of the above groups, Mr. Hesley still resides in Olive, and H. L. Winchell and J. S. Hill make their home in Kingston.

Robert Hogan and family of Kingston were Sunday callers at the home of Mr. Hogan's mother, Mrs. George Hogan.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Gearon are making a number of improvements to the grounds of their summer home on church hill. The beautiful flower gardens and hedges on the Gearon lawn make it one of the show-places of the reservoir section.

John Adsit, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adsit of the village center, was made a member of Troop 24 of the Boy Scouts, at a candle light ceremonial held in the Reformed Church hall on Friday evening, May 12. A one-act play was put on by members of the Shokan troop and refreshments were served during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vonder Osten and Mrs. George Giles left Shokan last Friday in the Vonder Ostens' car for a week's stay in New York city.

The apple trees here are loaded even more heavily with blossoms than was the case last spring, and to all appearances another bumper crop of fruit is in the making. The wild trees in pasture lots are especially beautiful at this time, presenting a study in pink and white that beggars description.

Due to the measles epidemic here, only eight pupils were in attendance at the local school on Monday. Only one of the third grade pupils put in appearance at classes at the beginning of the week. The school sessions will not be discontinued, however, as apparently all of the children now at school are immune from measles.

Oldest Race Track

Revere (Mass.) boasts of what probably is the oldest race track in America. Horses were raced on the hard-packed sands of Revere Beach, now a popular summer resort, back in the Eighteenth century.

Choosing Chief Executive

There have been several motions in the house and senate looking for a change in the system of electing a President, one as early as 1803. In 1868 a motion was made for the direct election of President, again in 1874 and 1877. President Jackson included a recommendation for the abolishment of the electoral college and direct vote for the President in each of his annual messages to congress from 1829 to 1836.

Respect for the Penny

Uncle Ab says that the financiers have at least restored a respect for the penny.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "The Animal Kingdom." A brilliant, skillful drama, sophisticated, realistic and cleverly done. It has won high praise from all the critics, and is one of the few motion pictures the majority of people would like to see more than once. Leslie Howard, Ann Harding, Myrna Loy, William Gargan, Neil Hamilton and Henry Stephenson are all perfectly cast in parts that give their talents full opportunity of expression. It's the human story of a young publisher, in love with a girl who is a talented illustrator. Both have their work to consider, but both need one another's help and encouragement. Another girl enters the picture, and she lures the publisher away from the other girl. It all turns out satisfactorily in the end, after some of the most perfect acting and finest dialogue ever seen and heard in a talkie. Ann Harding as the girl illustrator is splendid. Myrna Loy as the unscrupulous other woman almost steals the show, and Leslie Howard is at his best as the publisher. And William Gargan in the role of an ex-prize fighter turned butler is grand. Something not to miss.

Orpheum: "Chandu the Magician" and "Women Won't Tell." Feature number one is the story of a master magician, played by Edmund Lowe. It is thrilling melodrama, and hasn't a dull moment. A fine supporting cast makes the play the more enjoyable. "Woman Won't Tell" co-features Otis Harlan and Sarah Padden.

Broadway: "King Kong." So much ingenuity, originality, and research went into the production of this fascinating attraction, that even the fertile brain of the late Edgar Wallace, whose imagination conceived it, is outdone by the brilliance and skill of the men who made the screen version possible. It's a strange story, so unreal and impossible that the plot seems laughable. Imagine a group of movie people, starting out by boat for a mysterious island somewhere off the African coast. On board are camera men, the producer and director, his friend, and a girl who has been picked up to play the lead in a story the director is seeking. On the island they find King Kong master of a prehistoric world, with pterodactyls, dinosaurs, and diplodocae as his rugged playmates. King Kong is fifty feet high, and falls in love with the white girl, and carries her off into the jungle. She is rescued after much difficulty, and King Kong is captured and brought back to civilization, and put on display at a Broadway theatre. He breaks his bonds, climbs to the top of the Empire State building, and meets a grim death as airplanes rain machine gun bullets on his body until he tumbles into the street far below. Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong and Bruce Cabot are featured in the cast. An impossible tale, so cleverly executed that it seems almost realistic in the telling.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: Same.

Broadway: "Blondie Johnson." Joan Blondell and Chester Morris prove an ideal combination in this gangster melodrama that moves along briskly from start to finish. It's the story of a boy and girl, interested in racketeering as a business venture, and how they build up a paying business only to have the boy turn Park avenue when the money starts rolling in. Not only is the play exciting and well acted, but there are also some comedy spots worth seeing.

Chinese Civilization

The civilization of China goes much farther back than that of Japan. As a matter of fact, Chinese civilization was introduced into Japan about the first century A. D. In modern times, however, Japan has outstripped China in many respects. Japan having adopted western standards of living to a much greater degree. While Japan has shown a capacity equal to that of any other known people and while its manners and customs and certain institutions were modified in ancient times by Chinese culture, it has kept pace with European and American civilization.

Milky Sap Tree

A tree found on the Cordilleras of the coast of Venezuela emits, when pierced, a nutritious milky juice with an agreeable creamy odor and taste resembling that of cow's milk, which is relished by the natives of the region. It shares the name "cow-tree," with a number of similar species of trees from which milk-like fluids are obtained.—Detroit News.

Error Pension Paid 46 Years

That a pension was paid in error to a woman for 46 years has been disclosed in London by the British post office department. The woman, an employe, retired in November, 1888, on account of ill health, but failed to disclose that she was married that year. Neither was it revealed until after her death in February, 1931. The Fable of the Phoney Veneer

By GEORGE ADE

© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

ONCE there was a Young Man with a 30 Per Cent Slope above his Eye-brows and an Open Space where his Chin should have been. He had taken three full Courses in a Correspondence School which told the Provincial how to acquire Personality but he had not yet annexed enough to help him in flagging a Street Car.

Always he seemed to blend into the Surroundings, just like a Piece of Furniture. If he started to say Something in Company, that was the Signal for all the others to begin talking. He could stand in a Department Store for Hours without being waited on. He was King of the Strap-Hangers and held the World's Record for being pushed off the Sidewalk by the white-faced Snips who walk three and four abreast.

In every Generation there are certain Men who leave their Impress upon the World. Mr. Effingham Glitts had not made as much as a Dent. He was compelled to use Influence to get his Name into the City Directory. His Mail consisted of Catalogues and Propositions in regard to the Purchase of Books on a Weekly Payment Plan.

A Slogan Swallower.

If Mr. Glitts often pondered on Death and decided to postpone the Shuffle as long as possible, it was because he knew darned well that his Funeral would be a Flop. Just a couple of Calla Lilies and some Boys from the Office to Pall-Bear.

Effingham was a good deal of a Gnat but he did not enjoy his Destiny. He found it very irksome to be rated as a Cipher. He looked like something that is found asleep in a Back Row after an Illustrated Lecture on the Holy Land, but he had within him all of the turbulent Ambitions of a Napoleon. He had a smoldering Desire to bite on the Ankle all those who had been treading on him.

Probably what fussed Mr. Glitts more than anything else was the gloomy Fact that the Female Sex regarded him as a Swozzie: He could walk on the crowded Avenue for Miles and Miles and never get the Eye. He was cursed with all of the outward Appearances of one who is signally Moral. The Girls certainly co-operated to help him behave.

Mr. Effingham Glitts was old enough to have a Home of his own, a fine Job at a sweet Salary and a standing in Society. He saw Men of his own Age being elected to Congress, building Sky-scrapers and bossing Railroads. Whereas, he sat at a Desk and handled some of the piffling Details of a large Corporation. His Desk was over in a dark Corner, commanding a view of a Brick Wall and some overhead Wires. The English Sparrows would sit on the Wires and look in at Effingham and pity him.

The World had superimposed itself on Effingham Glitts as effectively as an Elephant might, in a spirit of utter Callousness, squat on a Caterpillar. The Fact that he was not crushed is all to his Credit. When he attempted to get up on his Hind Legs and crow he was a Bloomer, but let it be told to Future Generations that, at least, he made the Try.

It was about a Year ago that Mr. Glitts decided to stop playing the Third Assistant Grave-Digger and be the curly-haired hero. When an Insect starts out to be an Eagle that is some Contract, but Effingham was hopeful and determined. He had been on a Diet of uplifting Editorials and nice hot Slogans. He had been devouring these inspirational Pieces on how to achieve Success. Most of them had been written by salaried Hacks who owed Grocery Bills.

Had Good Intentions.

Mr. Glitts believed anything that was printed and framed. Every time he read one of those highly original Instructions hanging above a Desk he resolved to be himself and keep on smiling and do it now and not worry. He wanted to obey all of the Rules which had helped so many Humble Beginners to work their way up to $1,800 Jobs. So he made all his Plans to emerge from the Hay each A. M. and greet the newborn Day with high Courage.

He had it straight from a 15-cent Magazine that every Mortal can get away with Anything if he has the Nerve to jump right in and get a Strangle Hold on the immediate Problem. The only Failures are the poor Goofs who have no Confidence in themselves. Strike boldly and demand Attention and the World will greet you as a Conqueror. Beautiful Maidens will scatter Posies in your Pathway. Head Waiters will prostrate themselves. Bankers will smile and cut the Interest Rate. It sure reads well and it had Mr. Glitts completely hypped. He went to his Couch one Evening as a low-grade Mokus and arose next Morning as a strong and silent character who was going to pry open the World as if it were a soft-shell Clam and incidentally get the Women all worked up about him and then smile sardonically as he watched them Suffer. Possibly our good Friend was a little feverish under the Fedora when he formulated this high Resolve but he meant well and he sure made a decisive Stab at Greatness.

On his Way to Work he gave some crisp Orders to the Menial who was in charge of the Trolley Car. The Conductor did not recognize his Master's Voice so he called Effingham a Piece of Gorgonzola and told him that if he didn't cut out the Rah-Rah he would have to take a Bat in the Eye. In the Articles which Effingham had been reading there had been no definite Suggestions as to how a Situation of this Kind should be met, so he got off the Car and walked.

For a good many years he had been longing to go into the Private Office and tell the Boss just what was wrong with the whole Organization and how it would be a cinch to double the business and cut down the Overhead if the Departments could be managed by Men whose heads were filled with Brains instead of Omelets.

The Chief Executive looked up from his Work and there on the Rug was a Worm trying to give an Imitation of an Anaconda. The Head of the Firm listened patiently. When it was over he did not give Mr. Glitts the Fresh Air or even start in to pan him. He advised the faithful Employee to lie down for a little while and then go out and have his Temperature taken. So that is how near Effingham came to causing a Shake-Up.

Back to Nature.

When he sternly reprimanded the Typist who did a few Letters for him every Day and gave her a Lecture on the Importance of spelling correctly all Words of One Syllable she never missed one Jaw Movement as she chewed her Wax but she did tell him that he was the kind of Fish that ought to stay home all Day instead of wandering out into the Streets and frightening Pedestrians.

He couldn't even High Hat the lowly Office Boy. The Latter was afraid of the nut-headed Flippers but he had the greatest possible contempt for Mr. Glitts and called him a Gooble which doesn't mean anything but sounds terrible.

For a long time it had been Mr. Glitt's secret Desire to plant a Bomb under the Boarding House in which he was eking out a Miserable Existence. The Landlady was so busy counting the Calories and providing for the Vitamins that she forgot to give them any real Food. Effingham longed to bawl her out in such Loud Tones that his Complaint could be heard in Cuba.

So, while he was still under the Influence of the Complex of Superiority, he opened up and made a Scene at Dinner. It was called Dinner because it was served at about the Hour when People who can afford to Dine usually partake of the meal known as Dinner. Always the First Course was Soup which tasted as if some one had slipped Something into the Hot Water. The only real Excuse for calling it Soup was the fragment of Vermicelli floating idly on the Surface.

Effingham let out a Squawk, which is Hoi Polloi for Protest. He told the Soup the Truth about itself so that he could get a Rise out of the Landlady. He just sat back and waited for her to brag about the Home Cooking and the Refined Atmosphere.

He had framed a Come-Back which, probably, would lead up to his being ordered out of the Joint, Bag and Baggage. That was what he craved. He knew that he never could function as a Leader of Men while surrounded by the Flat-Heads and Tomtits of a third-rate Beanery.

But the Landlady knew him and pitied him, so she just told him to be in his Room about 9:30 and she would come up and fix a Foot Bath for him and give him 10 Grains of Aspirin and in the morning he would be all right.

Sure enough he was. He awoke next day fully reconciled to the Fact that he would always be the Goat of the Universe. He decided that he would have to be a Slob instead of a Schwab. He flew at the withered Prunes with real Gusto and spoke nicely of the lukewarm Coffee. Also he had a Cigar ready for the conductor on the Trolley Line.

Divers' Work on Ocean Floor Requires Nerve

The dangerous and thrilling business of working on the floor of the ocean has, within recent years, been carried to new achievements.

Dressed in heavy copper helmets and diving suits which weighed so much that a man could hardly walk unsupported in them, above water, the divers who worked for more than an hour at a time lifting a great submarine and her cargo of dead from the muddy ocean bottom, were no ordinary heroes. They learned that they had to be "decompressed" after remaining under the terrific weight of the sea for any length of time, at peril of their lives. And so, when the timekeeper on board ship at the surface indicated that the hour for work below had elapsed, the divers were drawn slowly to the surface.

For any prolonged stay under water or for deep-sea diving, the diver must have a very elaborate and perfect protective equipment. His suit must be heavy and strong. Besides having these qualities, his helmet must be equipped with valves which can be controlled by the diver to admit and release air for his comfort and safety. Sometimes the air is pumped through a long tough flexible hose from the surface. Sometimes the diver carries his own store of compressed air in a tank lashed to his back.—Detroit News.

Outlook for Gasoline Trade

Twelve miles to the gallon is the average gasoline consumption by motor cars, which means that 15,000,000,000 gallons will be used altogether this year, according to a study by the general committee of the highway and building congress.

Jelly Bear Blamed

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Jelly Bear, you must take that pig right back," commanded Willy Nilly. "It belongs to the farmer and you've no right to it.

"Of course, you don't see why you haven't as much right to it as the farmer, but I'll explain that. They could accuse you of stealing.

"Here, give the pig some food so he'll stop squealing, and be on your way promptly. Maybe no one will know this has happened. I hope this will be the case." Willy Nilly sighed.

Disappointedly Jelly Bear went out into the night with the pig. He was just leaving it in the pen when he was met by the farmer.

"So you're the thief!" he cried. "And you've stolen a pig, too."

"A pig is all I've stolen, and I've brought him back to you as Willy Nilly told me to do," said Jelly Bear. But the farmer could not understand Bear language.

"It was a good thing I was on the lookout tonight," the farmer said, "as now I've caught you."

He had a big rope with him and he fastened it around Jelly Bear, and through the night they trudged back to Willy Nilly's.

"I'll tell him a thing or two," the farmer muttered angrily.

When Willy Nilly heard the commotion and saw Jelly Bear with the farmer his heart sank.

"Your Bear has been killing my lambs!" the farmer cried, "and he's going to pay for this. Now I just caught him with a pig."

"Lambs!" cried Willy Nilly. "He never stole a lamb in his life. No Black Bear will."

"Well, I know better," said the farmer.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Benton Harbor, Mich., May 17 (AP).—A marathon robin who had to keep on the wing to hold the pace with her brood is getting a rest here.

Conductor Roy Blodgett saw the bird flying under the caboose of a Hartford-Benton Harbor freight train. Investigation revealed a nest in the under structure, bearing two blue eggs.

The next incoming freight train from Grand Rapids brought another caboose, and with it an order from division headquarters:

"Use extra caboose until robin is done with car."

More Work; Less Aid Needed

Steubenville, O.—This city's "new deal" for transients includes a "work for food" dictum that Capt. John Hudson, Salvation Army head directing the project, says has cut the number of applicants for aid 30 per cent.

A 10-acre plot is being plowed. Trees are being felled to build a commissary and dormitory for at least 76 men.

Marxes Bury Father

New York—The four Marx brothers, noted comedians of stage and screen, buried their father Samuel, Tuesday. He died in Los Angeles. A fifth son, Gummo, who followed the elder Marx in the cloak and suit business, also attended the rites.

That Wooden Money

Blaine, Wash.—Ole Nelson, fisherman, accidentally dropped his week's earnings, 25 of Blaine's wooden dollars, into the harbor.

His three sons rescued the salary. It floated.

Just A Quake

Berkeley, Calif.—Mrs. J. A. Wayland called police and reported: "Someone is rattling my windows." A police squad car was sent. The officers investigated and found only a vagrant earthquake responsible.

Bit Away, Bruno

New York—Parking a biting dog in a motor car is not illegal, says Magistrate Peter Daly. He dismissed the complaint of a man who said that while he was sauntering down a street, Mrs. Ruth Adams' dog reached out of the window of her car and nipped his shoulder.

A Taxi Please

Chicago—A couple of gentlemen hailed a taxi at the corner of Forty-Fifth street and Broadway in New York one day last week, and said to the driver, Arthur O. Kurth:

"Chicago, and make it snappy."

Yesterday the pair—Hadj Ahmed El Fellahi and Hadjar Si Mohamed, both from Rabat, Morocco—arrived. The bill was $150. They came for the world's fair.

Kurth looked up a few Chicago relatives and then started back home.

High School May Day Program Friday

Program Starts at 10 A. M. in Rear of School—Public is Invited—Students to Report an Hour Later.

The May Day festival at Kingston High School will take place Friday morning beginning at 10 o'clock in the rear of the school. One of the most elaborate programs in years will be presented. The public is cordially invited to attend. The students as in previous years will report an hour later—the first bell ringing at 9:30 and the tardy at 9:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Smith, director of the program, suggests to the spectators that to view the festival from the top of the hill would be the best since the gym girls' drill cannot be appreciated unless it is viewed from a higher level. Some hundred girls take part in this drill, which is one of the features of the program.

The main characters of the celebration will be Miss Evelyn Saxe, May Queen and her attendants, the Misses Rita Balfe, Jane Elston, Eleanor Murphy, Kathleen Reynolds, Alice Trowbridge, Edith Quimby, June MacFadden, and Florence Sheeley. Miss Ethel Phillips will be maid of honor. Elberon Hasbrouck, president of the senior class, will be prime minister.

The program will be as follows:
Entrance of the 330 gym girls.
Entrance of the 22 senior girls.
Entrance of the Queen and attendants.
Entrance of the banner bearers, maid of honor, prime minister, Queen's pages and flower girls.
President's address of welcome and crowning of Queen.
Queen's response address.
Drill and gymnastic exercises by gym girls.
Sellengers round, English Folk dance and winding of the May Pole by the senior girls.
Final procession.

Gas Acidity and STOMACH ULCERS

You watch a thousand people walk down Main Street—500 of them have acid stomachs—114 of them probably have stomach ulcers whether they know it or not. When gas gets in stomach and indigestion follows eating—watch out—you have an acid stomach. But don't worry—the right thing to do is this—get a can of Bisurated Magnesia (not a laxative) at McBride Drug Stores or your druggist — take it as directed—soon your sour acid stomach is soothed and is able to digest the heartiest meal without discomfort—the acid is neutralized—you're feeling fine once more.

Note: Bisurated is urged purely as a corrective for excess stomach acid, not as an ulcer cure—if you have reason to believe you have ulcers consult your physician—Keeping your stomach in good shape with Bisurated is one way to prevent them.—Advt.

News from the World on Wheels

A nation-wide good will tour, sponsored by The Elks Magazine and designed to focus attention on the 1933 national convention of the B. P. O. E. to be held in Milwaukee on July 17, was announced. The tour will begin on May 29 and will be composed of staff members of The Elks Magazine driving three Studebaker Commander Eight convertible sedans and three Rockne convertible roadsters in two-car caravans. The good will cars are lacquered in white and purple, the official Elks colors. Each two-car caravan will visit approximately 140 cities on the long road to Milwaukee. The cars will start on the same day from Tallahassee, Fla., New York city and Los Angeles, Calif., and will be on the road continuously, arriving in Milwaukee on the opening day of the convention.

Hupmobile factory shipments for the month of April were 48 per cent greater than for the month of March. Furthermore, actual deliveries of cars to buyers during April were 53 per cent greater than for the month of March and this retail delivery figure for April was the largest of any month since June, 1932. In fact April was 23 per cent better from a delivery standpoint than any other month since June of last year.

Further reflecting the automobile industry's recent gains over 1932, Studebaker reports that May dealer orders received for Studebaker and Rockne passenger and commercial cars, both domestic and export, as of record May 10 show an increase of 17.3 per cent over orders as of record May 10, 1932.

For the first time in more than three years, the General Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, now is operating at full capacity. This is the first time since the depression started that General or any other rubber company has been working its maximum force 24 hours a day, six days a week. Return to capacity production was celebrated by prolonged blowing of the factory whistles on order of William O'Neil, president, and cigars, cigarettes and candy were passed out to all employes. Throughout the factory were signs "Happy Days Are Here Again!" and the shouts of workers mingled with the sound of whirring wheels and hissing steam.

Concrete indication of a further upward trend in automotive buying nationally was revealed with the announcement by the Plymouth Motor Corporation that 27 per cent of its output for May was already sold in advance to dealers. With 26,000 Standard and De Luxe Plymouth models scheduled for production this month, the Plymouth factory now has bonafide unfilled orders on hand for approximately $16,000,000 worth of motor cars.

To give dealers and consequently the public, quicker service, Pontiac cars are now being assembled in Tarrytown, N. Y., St. Louis, Mo., Oakland, Cal., and Atlanta, Ga., for distribution to adjacent dealer territory. Pontiac cars will continue to be assembled in the company's central factories at Pontiac, Mich., and parts manufacture for this car will be centered in Michigan as heretofore.

With Oldsmobile sales continuing in May the upward trend which caused April deliveries to exceed production by 17 per cent, two successive increases this month have brought the May factory schedule to a new total 59 1 per cent above April production.

The Yahgans

The Yahgans are the most southern most people in the world and they are feared near extinction. They inhabit the southern island which lies at the extreme end of South America.

Naval Board Reports An Error in Judgment By Akron Commander

Opinion of Court Is That the Error Was a Contributory Cause of the Loss of the Ship—Did Not Condemn Commander Who Lost His Life.

Washington, May 17 (AP).—A naval board of inquiry reported today that an "error in judgment" on the part of Commander Frank C. McCord "was a contributory cause" of the loss of the airship Akron.

The report, which was approved in substance by Secretary Swanson, did not condemn the commander who lost his life in the disaster last April 4 along with 72 others.

The court explained it had but little "direct knowledge of the considerations" upon which the commander's judgment was based.

"Everything within the knowledge of Commander McCord at the time his decision was made," the report added, "might have pointed to his plan of action being justifiable.

"Certainly we know that many conflicting considerations had to be set one against the other, and what subsequent events show to have been an erroneous decision does not, in the opinion of the court, justify a condemnation without more information of the considerations upon which the plan of action was based. This information was lost with the ship."

The court recommended that "no further proceedings be had in the matter."

A Cake Sale

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Uptown Jewish Center will hold a cake sale in the vacant store on Fair street, in the Opera House building, beginning at 2 p. m. Thursday, May 18.

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 17 (AP).—Favorable corporate and trade news, together with a hopeful interpretation of Chancellor Hitler's address, was accompanied by strength in the financial markets today.

In shares, several issues advanced 1 to 2 points. Bonds were firm, and such staples as wheat and cotton were moderately higher. Directors of American Telephone maintained the boom time dividend rate of $9 a share annually, and the stock rose some 5 points.

The advance in shares embraced all major groups. Issues up 1 to 3 included U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, DuPont, Western Union, American Tobacco B, Bethlehem Steel, National Steel, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Consolidated Gas, North American, Columbia Gas and others.

It was notable that the share and staple markets ignored strength of dollars in foreign exchange dealings. In the earlier stages of the current advance, the level of the dollar had been regarded by traders as a measure of inflation, and they had shown a disposition to sell shares and speculative commodities, whenever the dollar advanced.

But with business news showing such major railroads as Pennsylvania and New York Central with carloadings above a year ago, with electric power production well over the level of last year, and steel ingot production estimated at 35 per cent of capacity, a level at which it is estimated most companies can at least break even after a year of severe deficits, Wall street seemed less interested in inflationary prospects.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York City; branch office, Stuyvesant Hotel.

High School Spring Concert on May 26

School Choral and Glee Clubs Directed by Leonard H. Stine to Present "Stabat Mater," Accompanied by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra Directed by Professor George Muller.

The annual spring concert presented by the Kingston High School Musical Association will be given in the high school auditorium on Friday evening, May 26, when the beautiful composition of G. Rossini, "Stabat Mater" will be sung by the Choral and Glee Clubs of the school under the direction of Leonard H. Stine and accompanied by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Professor George Muller.

Agreements were made between the Kingston Symphonic Organization and the High School Musical Association, Monday. It was decided, because of the economic conditions to make the concert complimentary, allowing all the music lovers to attend without charge which is a change from previous years.

Students and Alumni.

"Stabat Mater" is probably the most difficult composition ever attempted by the local school clubs. It has a number of solo parts written throughout its several sections and these solo parts are taken, some by the students and others by the recent members of the Alumni, who were well known during their high school days for fine voice work.

However, in an interview yesterday, Leonard H. Stine after speaking words of appreciation for the help given by these members of the Alumni, spoke of the number of fine voices developed among the students in the past few years; and also of the progress in teaching the students the appreciation of work such as "Stabat Mater" along with the developing of the individual's musicianship. These facts have never been placed before the public; but it might be well realized that the strides towards a greater field of music have been tremendous.

Rehearsal Tonight.

There will be a rehearsal tonight in the high school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock. All the members of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra and quartets are asked to be present.

50th Anniversary of Girls' Friendly

St. John's Girls' Friendly Society Entertains Hudson, West, G. F. Societies—The Rev. A. A. Packard Welcomes Guests.

Tuesday evening the Girls' Friendly Society of St. John's Church, Mrs. Henry J. Wood, leader, entertained the Hudson, West, Girls' Friendly Societies to the number of nine societies. With the hostess society and the seven rectors there were some 204 in attendance. The meeting in the church and the following program in the parish house were all in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Girls' Friendly Society in the diocese of New York.

At the short, simple and impressive church service, the Rev. A. A. Packard, rector of Holy Cross Church, had charge, welcoming the large congregation for the rector of the church, the Rev. W. Poyntell Kemper, who is still ill in St. Luke's Hospital, New York city. Other clergy in the chancel were the Rev. Mr. Chew of Newburgh, and the Rev. Father Malcomb, of Holy Cross, as well as J. C. Fraser, St. John's lay reader. The full vested choir was present, singing an anthem in addition to the regular music for the evening service.

The Rev. Mr. Packard, in welcoming the societies for Mr. Kemper and himself to their fiftieth anniversary, said that while he really did not intend to preach a sermon, there were three things he would like to have them all think about. First, that while anniversaries cause us to look backward to past achievements they also are an incentive for us to plan and look forward to the next 50 years, learning by past mistakes and profiting by past successful efforts. Second, the Girls' Friendly Society holds an important place as a social outlet for the girls of a community for it includes other than those girls who are members of the Episcopal Church. Third, it is a great world-wide organization, not simply scattered parochial groups; a part of the body of the Church of Christ.

Several special Girls' Friendly hymns were sung. After the church service the congregation adjourned to the parish house, Mrs. Henry J. Wood, head of the Kingston (St. John's) society and Miss MacDonald, chairman of the Neighborhood, West, presided at a short business meeting.

The assembled Friendly members voted to send a message of sympathy and hope for speedy recovery of the Rev. Mr. Kemper, in which they regretted that he could not have been with them. Miss MacDonald also thanked Father Packard for them all, for taking over the service.

It was a matter of profound regret that Miss Margaret Lukens, national president, who had expected to be present was unable to do so owing to the serious illness of her mother, nor could Mrs. Walter Smith, diocesan president, be with them because of the sudden death of her mother.

The roll call showed the following attendance by groups: St. John's, Kingston, 21; Holy Cross, Kingston, 22 and chaplain; St. George's, Newburgh, 30; Good Shepherd, Newburgh, 42; St. Andrew's, Walden, 24; St. John's, Cornwall, 14; St. John the Divine, Tompkins Cove, 15 and rector; St. Luke's, Haverstraw, 16; Christ Church, Marlborough, 5. There were seven rectors present.

It was voted to send the collection taken up at the service to the Bontock Scholarship, Phillippine Islands.

There was one member present who could count continuous membership in the St. George's Branch of Newburgh for 47 consecutive years, Miss Deisoreth.

Miss Muriel Obenaus led the audience in the singing of some of the Girl Friendly songs after which Mrs. Wood announced that a further feature of the program would be the Revue of The Modest Maidens of the 1900's, picturing in costumes and sketch a Girls' Friendly Society of that time. It would be a part of the program of such scenes given recently in New York city.

Boy Scout Camp Will Open July 17

The camp committee of the Ulster-Greene Boy Scout Council met at the Governor Clinton Monday evening to make preparations and plans for the coming summer camp.

July 17 was fixed upon as the date for the opening of camp, which will continue for at least four weeks. The site will be the same as last year, Camp Half Moon, near Cairo.

A goal of at least 25 per cent of the membership in attendance at camp has been set for all the troops in the Council. Scout Executive Wright announces that at least two troops have stated that they will have 100 per cent attendance and several others have informed the scout office that their attendance will be 70 per cent or over.

There will be three villages at the camp this year and an innovation will be the holding of two week-end camps for the benefit of boys who would like to spend some time at camp but are unable to come for the full period.

BANKS REFUSE $75,000 LOAN TO POUGHKEEPSIE.

Already holding a total of $1,000,000 in city obligations, the banks of Poughkeepsie in a report to the common council of that city refused to loan the city $75,000 at the present time. This $75,000 represents the deficits and estimated needs of the board of public works for the year. The banks were willing to advance $20,000 to finance needs of the public works board.

Hitler For Peace; Willing To Disarm

the victors in the war, saying that those facts could not be compensated for by sanctimonious phrases.

After complimenting Premier Mussolini for the four-power "peace club" plan he recently proposed, the chancellor turned to Mr. Roosevelt.

Ready To Agree To Roosevelt Plan.

"The American president's proposal places Germany under warm obligations," he said. "Germany is ready without reserve to agree to this method of relieving the international crisis for it, too, is of the opinion that without solution of the disarmament question no lasting economic reconstruction is possible.

"It is ready unselfishly to participate in this work of putting in order the political and economic conditions of the world.

"There can be only one task today, namely, safeguarding the peace of the world."

The fears of France and Poland of invasion could be justified only if Germany had modern weapons of aggression, but it is precisely these that she lacks, Chancellor Hitler said.

"The only nation having the right to fear invasion is Germany," he continued. "Germany is ready at all times to renounce weapons of aggression provided the rest of the world does likewise.

"Germany is ready to join every solemn non-aggression pact, for Germany is not thinking of aggression but of security."

"Germany would see in the realization of the high-minded proposal of the American president, by which the mighty United States are to be injected into Europe as guarantors of peace, a great tranquilization for all who sincerely favor peace.

"We have no more earnest wish than contributing toward healing the wounds of the war and of the Versailles treaty. Germany desires to proceed along no other path than that recognized as justified by the treaties themselves."

SWEEPING REORGANIZATION OF THE GOVERNMENT PLANNED

Washington, May 17 (AP).—A plan for sweeping reorganization of the government was said today by Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, to be contemplated as one of the major messages which President Roosevelt will transmit to Congress before adjournment.

It was indicated that not later than next week the far-reaching design for abandonment, shifting and merging of functions, intended to save several hundred millions of dollars in the next fiscal year, would be ready.

MASTER MASON'S NIGHT OBSERVED BY O. E. S.

On Friday evening, May 12, Clinton Chapter, No. 445, O. E. S., observed "Master Mason's Night," having as guests a large number of members of the Masonic fraternity. At the close of the business session the Masons were escorted into the room by officers of the chapter, where they were welcomed by the worthy matron, Miss Mary J. Howard. Added to her words of welcome was a song of greeting by Mrs. Helen Stern Mann. The Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, a past worshipful master of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, was introduced at the altar by Mrs. Bertha M. Baylor and welcomed by Miss Grace V. Merritt; at the same time Dr. Samuel Stern, a past worshipful master of Rondout Lodge, No. 343, was introduced by Miss Marguerite Lencke and welcomed by his niece, Mrs. Helen S. Mann. After these two honored guests were seated, Miss Bertha Waterman introduced the presiding officers of the various organizations who were present. They were Harold V. Clayton, acting worshipful master of Kingston Lodge, No. 10; Thomas V. Rowland, worshipful master of Rondout Lodge, No. 343; W. Frank Davis, high priest of Mt. Horeb Chapter, No. 75; and Michael O. Liebig, illustrious master of Ancient City Council, No. 21. These leaders were welcomed on behalf of Clinton Chapter by the worthy patron, Edward M. Stanbrough.

The speakers of the evening were Miss Grace V. Merritt, who spoke of the high ideals which were set before the members of both the Masonic fraternity and the Order of the Eastern Star; Dr. Samuel Stern, who spoke of the great increase of crime in the country today and gave many of the causes which were contributing to this increase; and Dr. Seeley, who brought the need of more and a deeper religion in the world to the minds of his listeners. Brief remarks were made also by Mr. Clayton, Mr. Rowland, Mr. Liebig, Miss Marguerite Lencke, Lynn D. Wessele, Mrs. Kittie Buddington, Mrs. Nellie LaForge and Miss Arlene Barteld.

During the evening a program was given consisting of vocal solos by Mrs. Elizabeth M. Kieffer, Mrs. Lena Burgher, Miss Laura H. Pratt and William Harcourt; readings by Mrs. Myrtle Reynolds and Mrs. Edith W. Taylor; a dance by little Miss Beverly Bonesteel, and magical feats by Miss Bertha Waterman.

Each master mason was presented with a souvenir of the evening, and at the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served.

Automobile Engineers have unanimously agreed that the cooling systems of all automobiles should be thoroughly flushed and cleaned at least twice a year, to remove the sludge, rust, grease, etc., that clogs and insulates the entire cooling system, which is primarily the cause of overheating and other motor troubles.

To take care of this type of work we are now using a special chemical compound which is guaranteed to remove any accumulations that may be in the radiator or engine block.

Why not let us service your car now to ensure you an efficient cooling system.

London's Most Modern Building

London's most modern office building, the Shell-Mex house, contains 2,000 windows, 700 wooden doors, 350 steel doors, and over 20 miles of hot and cold water pipes. The lifts can carry 10,000 people an hour.

The WORLD of STAMPS

The central design for the one-cent Century of Progress stamp is taken from a picture of old Fort Dearborn, shown here. The three-cent stamp will show the Chicago exposition's federal building.

BY QUINTON JAMES

Two buildings, one a reminder of that time 100 years ago when Chicago dropped its village status and became a town, and the other a feature of the exposition commemorating a "Century of Progress" will appear on the new United States stamps to be issued May 25.

The two form a striking contrast—the one a rough-hewn log structure, the other the tall, clean towers of modern architecture.

One-Cent Design.

The 1-cent stamp, printed in green, has for its central design a picture of old Fort Dearborn, pioneer outpost of Chicago.

A blockhouse of the old fort appears in the foreground with a stockade fence extending from either side to the edges of the stamp. In the background are trees and other buildings of the fort.

In a short ribbon panel at the top of the stamp are the words "U. S. Postage." The date "1833" appears at the left, "1933" at the right.

Above the blockhouse in a curved line are the words "Chicago Century of Progress." In each lower corner is a circular panel containing the figure "1." "Cent" appears in a narrow panel at the base of the stamp. Above are the words "Fort Dearborn."

Three-Cent Design.

The central design of the 3-cent stamp, purple, is a reproduction of the federal building on the exposition grounds.

In a short, narrow panel at the top are the words "U. S. Postage." Below, and on either side of the upper part of the central tower are the inscriptions "Century of Progress," at the left, and "Chicago 1833-1933," at the right.

In a horizontal line at the base of the central design are the words "Federal Building," and directly underneath is "Cents." Within a circular panel in each lower corner is the Roman numeral "III."

ZENA PLAYERS WILL GIVE DRAMA MAY 26

Zena, May 17—Friday and Saturday evenings, May 26 and 27, are the dates when the Zena Country Club Players will present the three-act comedy, "Baron Boloney," written specially for the players by Dan Lynch.

Former plays and shows given by the Z. C. C. players have established for them recognition and reputation and those who have attended them are always eagerly looking forward for the next one.

The story concerns the "castle," a boarding house and road stand owned and run by Baron Hausman and his daughter; a minstrel troupe with female impersonator, a traveling mother with two marriageable daughters, a widower and his niece and an absent minded professor, all of whom afford many extremely funny situations. Romance and "hold-ups," the worry of the motorcycle police and deputy sheriff, are a part of the plot.

Hornbeck Pitches And Bats Schryvers To 7 to 1 Victory

Bill Hornbeck's pitching and hitting proved too much for the Herzog Hardwaremen at the Athletic Field Tuesday evening and his combined efforts enabled the Schryver Lumbermen to win easily by the score of 7 to 1. It is the first game of the season that the Lumbermen have completed, each other game they participated in being called on account of darkness or washed out by rain.

Hornbeck held the Hardwaremen to five hits and had full control of the situation at all times. The only time he was really threatened was in the last inning when the Hardwaremen bunched two of their hits to score their lone tally.

Three hits out of three trips to the plate for a perfect evening was Hornbeck's contribution to the win. One of the hits went for three bases while another one was good for two. Ray Gadd, with two hits, was the only other batter to get more than one safety.

Ed Flemming opposed Hornbeck at the start. He retired in favor of Williams in the fourth inning. Flemming permitted four hits. Williams was nicked for three. Flemming pitched good ball while he lasted, but had to quit due to a lame arm.

The Lumbermen scored their first run in the second inning. "Coke" Tiano received a walk and was sacrificed to second base by "Dutch" Glaser. Petersen hit to Flemming, who tossed to Gadd to catch Tiano at third. Petersen then stole second and scored on Hornbeck's single.

Ragged fielding by the Hardwaremen paved the way for two more Lumbermen runs in the third inning. Niles singled to center field and raced to third when Flanagan let the ball get by him. He registered on a passed ball. A walk to Slover, a wild pitch and a single by Tiano accounted for the other tally. They added two more in the fourth and another pair in the fifth.

A single by Chambers, an infield out and a bingle by Gadd gave the Hardwaremen their run in the last inning.

SIDELINERS

The box of groceries offered by George Dawkins, of 100 Foxhall avenue, came near to being consumed by Bill Hornbeck and family. Bill's triple was a long drive and it took some fast fielding by Clayton to stop him from reaching home.

Flemming was making his first appearance as a pitcher in the City League and made a good showing.

It was really too cold for a ball game, but the fans struck it out until the last gun was fired. The Lumbermen have yet to pick a fair night.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If any "modern" baseball fans—those of the Ruthian era who prefer base hits to inside baseball—are worried about the domination of the flingers this spring, they have only to turn to Washington for hope.

The Senators and the Cleveland Indians put on a slugfest of near record proportions yesterday as they struggled through 12 long innings before Washington earned an 11-10 victory. The result put the teams into a tie a few points behind the New York Yankees, whose idleness regained for them the American League lead. In the long session the teams made a total of 43 hits, good for 51 bases, and nine pitchers marched off to the showers before Al Crowder finally got the decision over "Hard Luck" Mel Harder.

Washington piled 27 of the blows on top of last Saturday's doubleheader at Chicago, which produced 28 hits and 19 runs against the White Sox. Cecil Travis, recalled from Chattanooga to plug the gap at third left by Ossie Bluege's injury, celebrated his debut by making five singles, getting on base a sixth time through an error and scoring three runs. Luke Sewell likewise garnered five hits but Joe Kuhel topped them all by hitting a homer, a triple and three singles, driving in the winning run after singles by Buddy Myer and Sewell and an intentional pass to Pinch Batsman Bluege loaded the sacks.

The St. Louis Browns touched their former mate, Lloyd Brown, and Bob Kline, for 13 hits in eleven frames to beat the Boston Red Sox 3 to 2. Catcher Merrin Shea, recently of Boston, scored the winning run on a single, a sacrifice and Carl Reynolds' base hit.

The eastern openers between Detroit and New York and Chicago and Philadelphia were rained out.

Eastern Clubs of the National League began their invasion of the western sector by winning three out of four decisions. Pittsburgh's league leading Pirates were the only home team to win. They rapped Cy Moore, Snipe Hansen and Ad Liska for ten hits, including six doubles and a homer by Gus Suhr, and beat the Phillies 8 to 4.

Joe Mowry, just up from the American Association, provided a lot of punch that enabled the Boston Braves to beat the third-place Cincinnati Reds 6 to 3. He accounted for two runs with a single and a triple. The Brooklyn Dodgers kept St. Louis down in the fourth notch, just a point behind Cincinnati, by rallying for two runs in the ninth inning and a 6 to 5 victory. Bill Hallahan and Dizzy Dean walked the bases full and Johnny Frederick drove in the deciding runs with his fourth hit of the game.

Sarazen Says Concentration Half Of Battle Against Par

This is the twelfth and last of a series in which Gene Sarazen, British and American Open Golf champion, tells the average player how to cut strokes off his score.

By GENE SARAZEN
World Champion Golfer
(As Told To Alan Gould)

I there is one factor, above most others, that I would like to impress on the general run of golfers, no matter what their handicap rating, it is to CONCENTRATE.

By that I mean concentrate on the right grip and stance, concentrate on choosing the right club and concentrate on shooting for the green.

Don't be discouraged or start fiddling around with a different method if you miss one or two shots. It takes practice—and some mistakes—to acquire the right swing and timing.

Undisturbed by Gallery.

If you have ever studied the play of a champion closely you will mark the extreme all-around concentration of his play, under all sorts of circumstances and with galleries of thousands swarming about him. He would be "lost" quickly if he allowed himself to be distracted from the main goal of his play.

Jones, Ouimet and Hagen are great examples of what concentration will do. It is to that factor that I attribute my success last year, especially in the British Open at Prince's.

I went to England firmly convinced Prince's was going to be one of the toughest courses I ever tackled; that the only way I could beat it was to concentrate on every angle and every shot. I succeeded so well that I never had a single six on my card over there.

Had Prince's Down "Pat."

In particular I had studied the No. 5 hole at Prince's, a 460-yarder with two bunkers designed to catch an over-ambitious or erratic tee shot. I discovered the right spot to put my tee shot, where I would get a long uphill, but clear, shot to the green.

To make sure I drove with a [illegible]

An ability to concentrate on every shot, no matter how the gallery swirls around him, helped Francis Ouimet twice scale the amateur championship heights.

enough with the wood to get eagle threes. To my success on that hole, more than anything else, I owed my victory.

That will show you how it pays to concentrate, no matter how easy the shot looks. Remember, mistakes on easy shots are just as costly as those on hard ones, in addition to which they are more likely to produce aggravation and break down the muscle.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Gene the Shotmaker, like Omar the Tent-maker, enjoys a brisk argument as much as the next fellow. He has his own ideas about golf, does not hesitate to voice them, and has been known to make some critical suggestions.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, Mr. Sarazen wishes it distinctly understood that he has no quarrel whatever with the Professional Golfers' Association of America, of which he is a member in good standing and a representative for the 1932 Ryder Cup matches abroad. Neither did he refer to the U. S. G. A. as a "moss-backed" organization, inferentially or otherwise, and he is very much annoyed by the published suggestion he was rapping either national organization.

So much annoyed, in fact, that he wired me from Jackson, Tenn., the other day that he had been "grossly misquoted" by a syndicate man not in any way connected with The Associated Press.

"What——said about U. S. G. A. and pros teaching golf comes from his own head," wired the Open Champion. "I have too high regard for golf professionals and U. S. G. A. officials. He is quoting himself at my expense."

That seemed to be that, whereupon Sarazen resumed his tour with Joe Kirkwood by motor cavalcade through the South and Northeast.

The barnstorming pros did not play Bob Jones in Atlanta, which may have been all for the best, inasmuch as they took a trimming from a pair of Georgia youngsters, Charley Yates, one of the sensations of the 1932 national amateur, and Scott Hudson.

Gyselman Going Great

Up Boston way, the critics think Dick Gyselman, lanky recruit from the San Francisco Missions, has made the grade at third base for the Braves, filling a long-existing gap in the club's inner defense.

His former coast teammate, Albert Wright, has been less fortunate breaking into action, for the simple reason that the perennial Rabbit Maranville refuses to be ousted from the job at second base and won't be so long as he keeps the Braves pepped up.

Gyselman is a gangling youth, but seems possessed of a natural poise in handling the ball, making difficult stops and getting the throw across the diamond with dispatch. Boston observers compare him to the peer of all the major league guardians of the hot corner, Pie Traynor, a Massachusetts product.

Owe Much to McKechnie

Gyselman and other ball-players breaking into fast company with the Braves can thank Manager William McKechnie for the benefits of being properly handled.

Wilkinsburg Will has the knack of getting the most out of these newcomers, meanwhile keeping their heads on their shoulders. His judgment of players is sound, his advice well framed.

Instead of bemoaning his ill luck in having one of the 1932 freshman stars, Bobby Brown, on the shelf with a sore arm this spring, McKechnie demonstrated his resourcefulness by turning up another star in Ed Fallenstein, who cost the Braves nothing more than carfare, board and lodging before he signed a contract.

Ravena All Stars Against Pan-Ams

The Ravena All Stars, who have packed away three decisions over strong clubs so far this season, will be opponents of the Pan-Ams Sunday at the Sangerties Road diamond in the Olmen's third attempt this summer. Last week the Pans slugged out a 17-2 victory over the Hersby A. C. of Albany and the Sunday before bowed to the West Point Service Club in the inaugural of their campaign for 1933 by the score of 13-11.

Last Sunday's showing against the Albany club has added much zest to the players and Manager "Dutch" Glaser believes that there will be no stopping the boys now in their bid for the baseball honors of Ulster county and the annual battle among Kingston clubs for the best record of the season.

Yesterday's STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Johnny Frederick, Dodgers—His fourth hit drove in tying and winning runs against Cardinals.

Mervin Shea—Browns—Singled in eleventh to start rally that beat Red Sox.

Bill Swift, Pirates—Set Phillies down with eight hits and no earned runs, fanning five, to win 8-4.

Cecil Travis, Senators—Celebrated major league debut by hitting five singles against Cleveland.

Carl Hubbell, Giants—Scattered eight hits to Cubs struck out five, to win fifth victory of season.

Randy Moore and Wally Berger, Braves—Made three hits each in 6-3 triumph over Reds.

TROJANS ARE THANKFUL TOWARD THE FREEMAN

The Trojan baseball club of Port Jervis, which played at the Kingston Fair Grounds Sunday, losing to the Kingston All Stars by a score of 6-0, has expressed appreciation to The Freeman for acting as the medium through which the game was booked.

Manager Joe Cashman of the Trojans wrote to The Freeman last week requesting games with the best teams of Kingston and vicinity. His request was published and the match with the All Stars resulted. Today his letter of thanks was received. It was brief but full of meaning and showed him to be a real sport.

An opposing team for this coming Sunday has not been signed yet by Manager Jack McCardle of the All Stars. He expected to have the Albany Black Sox here, but that aggregation of colored stars will not be available until after Memorial Day. However, he has promised to have a real strong club to contest against the local stars who have two victories to their credit in as many starts. Judge Culloton winning pitcher on both occasions probably will do mound duty again for the McCardlemen. Last Sunday he had 12 strikeouts and allowed only three hits.

Butterfly Dogs Popular in Seventeenth Century

Papillons or the butterfly dogs are ever intriguing and have many friends in the dog world.

These dogs may be seen depicted as accessory decorations in the portraits of kings and courtiers of the Seventeenth century. Rubens, Vandyke and other Flemish masters were fond of introducing these pretty lapdogs in their paintings of the court beauties of their period.

More than 400 years ago this breed was first discovered in Spain, and only a few years later it appeared in southern China. It is thought a migrating band of Spaniards had taken these dogs to China, then returned to Spain leaving the dogs there.

This breed was quite fashionable in France during the earlier half of the Eighteenth century. It can be identified in some of the decorative canvases of Watteau, Fragonard and Boucher in which it is seen at play amid the gay crowds masquerading as shepherds and shepherdesses in the gardens of Versailles. Madame Pompadour possessed a brace named Inez and Mimi, and Marie Antoinette was especially devoted to her Papillons.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Goby, of Climbing Fish Family, Is Found in U. S.

Those explorers who go to the tropics after the "tree-climbing fish" have overlooked right at home a small sized cousin of this phenomenon.

The goby was found in an oyster reef of Delaware bay, and represents a kind of animal association occasionally seen.

Usually a parasite is much smaller than the animal on which he lives, termed the "host." But this goby was a fully developed fish an inch long. His oyster friend was three inches long. When found, the fish was imbedded in one of the cavities of the oyster's body.

The goby is a queer fish largely because he has no air bladder. He cannot remain at rest in water. He sinks unless he is actively paddling. Hence on the bottom he has learned to use his fins somewhat like feet.

Modern Homes for Red Men

The erection of comfortable and more commodious dwellings during the last few years has been a feature in the growth of civilizing influences among the Indians of the Provinces of Canada according to the Department of Indian Affairs. The new homes provide many conveniences and the light and ventilation that was lacking in the old. The new condition has encouraged the owners to appreciate the value of additional results to augment their sources of livelihood such as the cultivation of gardens, the raising of chickens and in some instances pigs, and turning their attention to milking and butter making.

Meat That Is "Kosher"

Kosher meat is the meat of animals that have been killed according to the methods prescribed by Jewish law and orthodox Jews will eat no other. In some places the animals are killed by the rabbi, in others by a church officer known as the schochter. Schochting is a method of killing according to the so-called Mosaic law. The animal is hung up by the hind feet and the throat is struck with a knife. If the knife strikes a bone the meat is not used. The meat is ceremonially cleaned and is marked by a stamp and seal.

Judgment on Debate

It is customary for the judges to base their decision on the merits of the debate rather than on the merits of the question. Each judge should write at some distance from the others and at the conclusion of the debate, without consultation, write on a card the word "Affirmative" or "Negative." Then it in an envelope and give it to the presiding officer, who opens it and announces the result. Judges are not required to decide which side is right but rather which team has presented the truth on its side most effectively and persuasively.

Concerning Columbus

Concerning Columbus, says the Brooklyn Eagle, there are books without number, but they reveal little about the man or of his early life, though in one characteristic stands clearly outlined—the amazing fixity of purpose which bore up against the delays and disappointments of those long years of waiting, while he haunted the courts of Portugal and authority, what must have seemed a very [illegible]

Poultry Activities Of Farm Bureau

At this season of the year the Farm Bureau office receives hundreds of inquiries about various chick raising troubles. There seems to be more trouble from Pullorum disease (Bacillary White Diarrhea), than there has been for several years, according to Albert Kurdt, manager of the Farm Bureau. He suggests that greater care be used in finding sources of chicks that are free from the disease and chicks that are properly incubated. The poultryman intending to buy chicks next year, should begin to think about possible sources now, and perhaps visit some of the places this summer and fall.

During the past winter the Farm Bureau has had the best poultry program it has ever had. This is due entirely to the interest and work of the county poultry committee, states Mr. Kurdt. The committee has planned and sponsored several major activities, such as the Poultry Exposition held at the old armory during March, the Chick Management Campaign through which nearly 400 poultrymen are receiving lessons in chick rearing free of charge, the monthly meetings of the poultry club for which the Farm Bureau arranges to secure speakers at the request of the committee, chicken pox vaccine is being distributed in cooperation with the Veterinary College and local veterinarians and numerous local matters have been held at the request of poultrymen. The success of the Mid-Hudson Egg Auction at Poughkeepsie, which is being supported largely by Ulster county producers, has been partly due to the efforts of the Farm Bureau.

Any activities of the Farm Bureau are either arranged for and requested by committees of members from various parts of the county or sponsored by the board of directors. Members who have suggestions to offer for making the Farm Bureau of greater service, should not hesitate to make them at any time.

Planning for Big Convention Here

The convention committee in charge of plans for the big convention of the state civil service to be held here in June met at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday evening to complete the convention plans. The convention will be held in the old armory and about 800 delegates and friends are expected here at that time.

The large delegation from New York city and vicinity will arrive in Kingston on a special train on the West Shore railroad about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, June 23, and will be met by members of the convention committee and escorted to the Governor Clinton Hotel. The delegates from other sections of the state will also arrive on Friday it is expected.

It is planned to hold a dinner and dance for the delegates in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Friday evening. The convention opens Saturday morning, June 24, in the old armory with a morning session from 9 to 12 o'clock and an afternoon session from 2 to 5 o'clock.

On Sunday it is planned to take the delegates for an auto trip over the Minnewaska Trail to the Institution for Defective Delinquents at Napanoch, where the delegates will inspect the institution and then be taken for a ride around the Ashokan Reservoir and back to the city.

PROF. LEE ADDRESSED POULTRY CLUB MEETING

Prof. Clarence E. Lee, research director of the Beacon Milling Company, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Ulster County Poultry Club on Tuesday evening at the court house, with about 75 members present from all parts of the county. Charles H. Weidner, president of the club introduced Joseph Solcberg, who was chosen as chairman for the meeting last month.

Mr. Solcberg asked A. P. Kaplan, president of the egg auction, to give a brief report on the auction to date, followed by a few remarks by John J. Miller, vice president of the auction and Carl Delgrin, the auction master. Judging from the reports, the Mid-Hudson Egg Auction, operating in Poughkeepsie since last fall, is doing very nicely and is of a great deal of value to all poultrymen. Albert Kurdt, manager of the Farm Bureau and secretary of the club, was then asked to say a few words as to how poultrymen might obtain the chicken pox vaccine for vaccinating pullets against this dreaded disease. Mr. Kurdt stated that as soon as arrangements are made with a local veterinarian to handle the material, the veterinarian's name, together with the number of doses desired and the date needed, should be left at the Farm Bureau office.

Prof. Lee opened his talk with two very interesting reels of motion pictures taken on two Dutchess county poultry farms. He explained the various pictures as they were shown. After the pictures he gave some very interesting figures in regard to the results of birds maintained in hen batteries and gave a brief report on the use of all-night lights on laying birds. After answering several questions, the meeting was adjourned.

At the business meeting it was decided to secure Dr. J. C. Huttar of the G. L. F. Marketing Corporation as the speaker for the June meeting of the club.

SUCCESSFUL ATTORNEY MOVES FOR OPPOSITION

The rather unusual proceeding of the successful attorney for the plaintiff making a motion to set aside the verdict, on behalf of the attorney for the defendant, was witnessed in Supreme Court Tuesday afternoon.

The jury in the case of Lawrence Y. Wardell against Harrison W. Decker brought in a verdict of $185 in favor of the plaintiff. Wardell, when the latter's attorney, Andrew J. Cook arose and moved to set aside the verdict, on the usual grounds. Mr. Cook carefully explained to the court and jury, however, that he was making the motion as an act of courtesy towards the defendant's attorney, John C. Welsh, who had been obliged to leave the city at the close of the trial in the forenoon.

The case was a negligence action and arose out of an automobile accident on the Newburgh-New Windsor highway on the night of March 28, 1932.

Action in Death of Little Girl Begun In Supreme Court

Negligence Action for Death of Eight Year Old Lorraine Ellsworth in 1931 on Hurley Avenue Is Begun Before Judge Staley.

The [illegible] action brought by Lawrence [illegible] against Harry [illegible] W. [illegible] before Justice [illegible] and a jury [illegible] Monday afternoon was completed and given to the jury shortly before noon Tuesday and a jury was drawn in the next case, an action brought by [illegible] [illegible] against Myron Hopper.

This action, trial of which was begun at the opening of court Tuesday afternoon, is a negligence action and arises out of the death [illegible] [illegible] Lorraine Ellsworth [illegible] street on the evening of July [illegible], 1931.

The little girl was [illegible] on Hurley avenue near the corner of [illegible] avenue when she was struck by a car driven by Myron Hopper of [illegible] street [illegible] with two companions [illegible] returning to Kingston after [illegible] swimming at Hurley.

The first witness called was Arthur F. Hallinan, city engineer, who had prepared maps of the location of the accident on Hurley avenue. Judge Staley sustained the objection of Frank W. Brooks, attorney for defendant, that there was no proof that the maps showed conditions as they were in 1931 at the time of the accident and the exhibit was withdrawn for the time.

Defense made the same objections to five pictures taken on May 2, 1932, by Louis O. Merillat, but Judge Staley allowed them to be admitted as showing the general situation in the locality of the accident, but not as showing the condition of the roadway, which it was claimed had been improved between the time of the accident and the time the pictures were taken. The case was continued this morning.

The plaintiff is represented by Charles de la Vergne, with Chris. J. Flanagan of counsel. Frank W. Brooks appears for the defendant, Myron Hopper.
